The institute again warned against a military buildup in third-world countries. It said the value of weapons transferred to these countries in 1975 increased by 20 percent after a 40 percent increase in 1974.

Young readers jettisoned

Young readers jettisoned James because they felt he portrayed a no longer relevant society of well-heeled, well-mannered gentlefolk. "People my age don't read him any more," said the great-grandnephew, Alexander James Jr., 27, a graduate student at the University of Massachusetts. The vounger Massachusetts. The younger Mr. James said he had read "a few of his books."

A new respect for James has emerged in recent years, however.

"He saw English civilization simply as the best, with all its faults, that Europe had to offer," Mr. Spender said.
"He also saw it as doomed."

"Like Proust," Mr. Spender added, "James was in some respects the elegist of a great civilization in decline. As with Proust, one can read through the symptoms of that decline the still poig-nantly living characteristics of history, marvelous natural scenery, and vivid human personalities which made that civilization so great."

Excerpts From Platform to Be Submitted to the Democratic National Conve

WASHINGTON, June 17-Following are excerpts from the platform adopted Tuesday night by the Democratic Platform Committee for submission to the Democratic National Convention next

PREAMBLE

The founder of the Democratic Party-Thomas Jefferson of Virginiaset forth the reasons for this separation and expressed the basic tenets of democratic governments: that all persons are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness-that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among people, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

These truths may still be self-evident, but they have been tragically abused by our national Government during the past eight years.

Two Republican Administrations have both misused and mismanaged the powers of national Government, obstructing the pursuit of economic and social opportunity, causing needless hardship and despair among millions of our fellow citizens.

Two Republican Administrations have betrayed the people's trust and have created suspicion and distrust of government through illegal and unconstitutional actions.

We acknowledge that no political party, nor any President or Vice President, possesses answers to all of the problems that face us as a nation, but neither do we concede that every human problem is beyond our control. We recognize further that the present distrust of government cannot be transformed easily into confidence.

It is within our power to recapture, in the governing of this nation, the basic tenets of fairness, equality, opportunity and rule of law that motivated our revolutionary founders.

We do pledge a Government that has as its guiding concern, the needs and aspirations of all the people, rather than the perquisites and special privilege of

We do pledge a Government that listens, that is truthful, and that is not afraid to admit its mistakes.

We do pledge a Government which will be committed to a fairer distribution of wealth, income and power.

We do pledge a Government in which the new Democratic President will work closely with the leaders of the Congress on a regular, systematic basis so that the people can see the results of unity. Our President will use his office to communicate purpose and a strategy for movement. He will enunciate goals which are shared within the executive

We do pledge a Government in which the Democratic members in both houses of Congress will seek a unity of purpose on the principles of the party.

I. Full Employment, Price Stability and Balanced Growth

Republican Mismanagement

Those who should be working and paying taxes are collecting unemploy-ment compensation or other welfare payments in order to survive. For every I percent incease in the unemployment rate-for every one million Americans out of work-we all pay $3 billion more in unemployment compensation and $2 billion welfare and related costs, and lose $14 billion in taxes.

With prudent management of existing programs, full employment revenues will permit the financing of national Democratic initiatives.

The goal of the new Democratic Administration will be to turn unemployment checks into pay checks.

What Democrats Can Achieve

We have met the goals of full em-ployment with stable prices in the past and can do it again. The Democratic Party is committed to the right of all adult Americans willing, able and seeking work to have opportunities for useful jobs at living wages. To make that commitment meaningful, we pledge ourselves to the support of legislation that will make every responsible effort to reduce adult unemployment to 3 percent with 4 years.

Modernizing Economic Policy

To meet our goals we must set annual targets for employment, production and price stability; the Federal Reserve must be made a full partner in national economic decisions and become responsive to the economic goals of Congress and the President; credit must be generally available at reasonable interest rates; tax, spending and credit policies must be carefully coordinated with our economic goals, and coordinated within the framework of national economic

Full Employment Policies

Consistent and coherent economic policy requires Federal antirecession grant programs to state and local governments, accompanied by public employment, public works projects and direct stimulus to the private sector. In each case, the programs should be phased in automatically when unemployment rises and phased out as it

Even during periods of normal eco-nomic growth, there are communities and regions of the country-particularly central cities and rural areas—that do not fully participate in national economic prosperity. To restore balance, national economic policy should be designed to target Federal resources in areas of greatest need. To make low and local governments for the purpose of encouraging private sector invest-ment in chronically depressed areas, we endorse consideration of programs such as a domestic development bank or federally insured taxable state and local bonds, with adequate funding, proper management and public dis-

To meet the needs of youth, we should consolidate existing youth employment programs; improve training, apprenticeship, internship and job-coun-seling programs at the high school and college levels; and permit youth partici-pation in public employment projects.

There are people who will be especialdifficult to employ. Special means for training and locating jobs for these people in the private sector, and, to the extent required, in public employment, should be established. Every effort should be made to create jobs in the private sector. Clearly, useful public jobs are far superior to welfare and unemployment payments.

Equal Employment Opportunity

We must be absolutely certain that no person is excluded from the fullest opportunity for economic and social participation in our society on the basis sex, age, color, religion or national

Anti-Inflation Policies

A comprehensive anti-inflation policy must be established to assure relative price stability. Such a program should emphasize increased production and productivity and should take other measures to enhance the stability and flexibility of our economy.

At times, direct Government involvement in wage and price decisions may be required to ensure price stability. But we do not believe that such involvement requires a comprehensive system of mandatory controls at this time. It will require that business and labor must meet fair standards of wage and price change. A strong domestic council on price and wage stability should be established with particular attention to restraining price increases in those sectors of our economy where prices are "administered" and where price competition does not exist.

Finally, tax policy should be used if necessary to maintain the real income of workers as was done with the 1975

Economic Justice

Antitrust Enforcement

The next Democratic Administration will commit itself to move vigorously against anti-competitive concentration of power within the business sector.

Small Businesses

To alleviate the unfavorable conditions for small business, we must make every effort to assure the availability of loans to small business, including direct Government loans at reasonable interest rates, particularly to those in greatest need, such as minority-owned

Tax Reform

Economic Justice will also require a firm commitment to tax reform levels.

We pledge the Democratic party to a complete overhaul of the present tax system, which will review all special tax provisions to ensure that they are justified and distributed equitably among our citizens. A responsible Democratic tax reform program could save over $5 billion in the first year with larger savings in the future.

We will strengthen the internal tax code so that high income citizens pay reasonable tax on all economic in

We will reduce the use of unjustified tax shelters in such areas as oil and gas, tax-loss farming, real estate, and movies.

We will eliminate unnecessary and ineffective tax provisions to business and substituting effective incentives to encourage small husiness and capital formation in all businesses.

We will end abuses in the tax treatment of income from foreign sources. We will overhaul Federal estate and gift taxes.

We will seek and climinate provisions that encourage uneconomic corporate mergers and acquisitions. We will eliminate tax inequities that adversely affect individuals on the basis of sex or marital status. We will curb expense account de-

And we will protect the rights of all taxpayers against oppressive procedures, harassment and invasions of privacy hy the internal revenue service. Tax policies and other indirect subsidies have promoted deterioration of cities and regions. These policies should be reversed.

There are other areas of taxation where change is also needed. The Ford Administration's unwise and unfair proposal to raise the regressive Social Security tax gives new urgency to the Democratic Party's goal of redistrib-uting the burden of the Social Security tax by raising the wage base for earnings subject to the tax with effective exemptions and deductions to ease the impact on low income workers and two-earner families. Further revision the Social Security program will be required so that women are treated individuale

Labor Standards and Rights

The minimum wage rate [should] at least keep pace with the increase in the cost of living

Raising the pay standard for over-time work, additional hiring of parttime persons and flexible work schedules will increase the independence of workers and create additional job opportunities, especially for women. We also support the principle of equal pay for comparable work. We are committed to full implementation and enforcement of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.

We support the right of public employees and agricultural workers to organize and bargain collectively. We urge the adoption of appropriate Federal legislation to ensure this goal.

We will support the full right of construction workers to picket a job site peacefully.

We will seek repeal of Section 14(B) of the Taft-Hartley Act which allows states to legislate the anti-union open

The occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 should cover all employees and be enforced as intended when the law was enacted. Early and periodic review of its provisions should be made to insure that they are reasonable and workship

II. Government Reform and Business Accountability

The Right to Competent Government

The Democratic Party is committed to the adoption of reforms such as zerobased budgeting, mandatory reorganization timetables, and sunset laws which do not jeopardize the implementation of basic human and political rights.

The Right to Responsive Government

The Democratic Party is committed to openness throughout Government: at regulatory commissions, advisory committee meetings and at hearings: Democrats have long sought—against fierce Republican and big business opposition—the creation and maintenance of an independent consumer

The Democratic Party is committed to the review and overhaul of Civil Service laws.

The Right to Integrity in Government

The Democratic Party is pledged to the concept of full public disclosure by major public officials and urges appropriate legislation to effectuate this policy.

All diplomats, Federal indges and other major officials should be selected. on a basis of qualifications. At all levels of Government services, we will recruit, appoint and promote women and

The Right to Fair Dealing by Government

An office of citizen advocacy should be established as part of the executive branch, independent of any agency, with full access to agency records and with both the power and the respon-sibility to investigate complaints.

Business Accountability

Unnecessary regulations should be ated or revised. However, Government must not shirk its responsibility to impose and rigorously enforce regulation where necessary to ensure bealth, safety and fairness. We reiterate our support for unflinching anti-trust enforcement, and for the selection of an Attorney General free of political obligation and committed to rigorous antitrust prosecution.

III. Government and Human Needs

Health Care

We need a comprehensive national health insurance system with universal and mandatory coverage. Such a national health insurance system should be financed by a combination of employer-employee shared payroli taxes and general tax revenues. Consideration should be given to developing a means of support for national health insurance that taxes all forms of economic income. We must achieve all that is practical while we strive for what is We must have national health insurance with strong built-in cost and quality controls.

The cost of such a program need not exceed the share of the GNP this nation currently expends on health care.

Welfare Reform

Fundamental welfare reform is nec-

We should move toward replacement of our existing inadequate and wasteful system with a simplified system of income maintenance, substantially fin-anced by the Federal Government, which includes a requirement that those able to work be provided with appro-priate available jobs or job training opportunities. Those persons who are physically shie to work (other than mothers with dependent children) should be required to accept appropriate available jobs or job training. This maintenance system should embody certain basic principles. First and most important, it should provide an income floor both for the working poor and poor not in the labor market. It must treat stable and broken families equally. It must incorporate a simple schedule of work incentives that guarantees equitable levels of essistance to the working poor.

As an interim step, and as a means of providing immediate Federal fiscal relief to state and local governments. local governments should no longer be required to bear the burden of welfare costs. Further, there should be a phased reduction in the states share of welfare

Civil and Political Rights We seek ratification of the equal right

We support vigorous enforcement of voting rights legislation to assure the constitutional rights of minority and language-minority citizens, and full home rule for the District of Columbia.

We pledge effective and vigorous action to protect citizens privacy from bureaucratic and technological intrusions, such as wiretapping and bugging without judicial scrutiny and supervision, and a full and complete pardon for those who are in legal or financial jeopardy because of their peaceful opposition to the Vietnam War, with deserters to be considered on a case-by-case

We fully recognize the religious and ethical nature of the concerns which many Americans have on the subject of abortion. We feel, bowever, that it is undesirable to attempt to amend the U.S. Constitution to overturn the Suprema Court decision in this area.

Education

We propose federally financed, family centered developmental and educational child care programs.

With increased Federal funds, it is possible to enhance educational opportunity by eliminating spending disparities within state borders.

The essential purpose of school desegregation is to give all children the same education opportunities. We will continue to support that goal.

Mandatory transportation of students beyond their neighborhoods for the purpose of desegregation remains a judicial tool of last resort for the purpose of achieving school desegregation. We encourage a variety of other measures, including the redrawing of attendance lines, pairing of schools, use of the "magnet school" concept, strong fair housing enforcement, and other techniques for the achievement of racial and economic integration.

The party also renews its commitment to the support of a constitutionally acceptable method of providing tax aid for the education of all pupils in nonsegregated schools.

With a coordinated and reliable system of grants, loans and work-study, we can relieve the crisis in costs that could shat all but the affluent out of our colleges and universities.

Older Citizens

We will not permit an erosion of Social Security benefits. Democrats strongly support employment programs and the liberalization of the allowable earnings limitation under Social Se-

IV. States, Counties and Cities

To assist further in relieving both the fiscal and service delivery problems of states and local governments, the Democratic Party reaffirms its support for general revenue sharing, acknowledging that the civil rights and citizens participation provisions must be strengthened.

Housing and Community Development

We support direct Federal subsidies and low interest loans to encourage the construction of low and moderate income housing.

We will take all necessary steps to prohibit the practice of red-lining. The Democratic Party pledges itself to the aggressive enforcement of the Fair Housing Act.

The Special Needs of Older Cities

The Democratic Party recognizes that a number of major, older cities including the nation's largest city-have been forced to undertake even greater social responsibilities, which have resulted in unprecedented fiscal crises. There is a national interest in helping such cities in their present travail, and a new Democratic President and the Congress shall undertake a massive effort to do so.

Law Enforcement and Law Observance

We support a major reform of the criminal justice system, but we oppose any legislative effort to introduce repressive and anti-civil libertarian measures in the guise of reform of the criminal code.

Handguns simplify and intensify violent crime. Ways must be found to curtail the availability of these weap-

Furthermore, since people and not guns commit crimes, we support manda-tory sentencing for individuals convicted of committing a felony with a

The Democratic Party, however, affirms the right of sportsmen to possess guns for purely hunting and targetshooting purposes.

The Attorney General in the next Democratic Administration will be an independent, nonpolitical official of the highest integrity. We will establish the machinery for appointing an inde-pendent special prosecutor whenever

Transportation

We will work to expand substantially the discretion available to states and cities in the use of Federal transportation money, for either operating expenses or capital programs on the modes of transportation which they choose. A greater share of highway trust fund money should also be available on a flexible basis.

V. Natural Resources and Environmental Quality

Energy Energy Pricing

The pricing of new natural gas is in need of reform. We should narrow the gap between oil and natural gas prices with new natural gas ceiling prices that maximize production and investment while protecting the economy and the

Domestic Supply and Demand

The Democratic Party believes that the United States' coal production can and must be increased.

Strip mining legislation designed to protect and restore the environment, while ending the uncertainty over the rules governing future coal mining, must be enacted.

U.S. dependence on nuclear power should be kept to the minimum necessary to meet our needs. We should apply stronger safety standards as weregulate its use.

Competition in Domestic Petroleum Industry

When competition inadequate to insure free markets and maximum benefit to American consumers exists, we support effective restrictions on the right of major companies to own all phases of the oil industry.

We also support the legal prohibition against corporate ownership of com-peting types of energy, such as oil and

Agriculture

We must continue and intensify efforts to expand agriculture as long-term markets abroad, but at the same time we must prevent irresponsible and inflationary sales from the American granary to foreign purchasers. Environmental Quality

The Democratic Party believes that a concern for the environment need not and must not stand in the way of a much-needed policy of high economic growth.

A vigorous program with national minimum environmental standards fully implemented, recognizing basic regional differences, will ensure that states and workers are not penalized by pursuing environmental programs.

VI. International Relations

Defense policy and spending for mili-tary forces must be consistent with meeting the real security needs of the American people. The Congress will be involved in the major international decisions of our government, and our foreign policies will be openly and consistently pre-sented to the American people.

We must seek areas of cooperation with our traditional adversaries. But pursuit of détente will require maintenance of a strong American military deterrent, hard bargaining for our own interest, recognition of continuing competition, and a refusal to oversell the immediate benefits of such a policy to the American public.

The Challenge of Interdependence

The International Economy We will support reform of the inter-national monetary system to strengthen institutional means of coordinating national economic policies.

A Democratic Administration will vigorously pursue international negotiations to insure that the multinational activities of corporations, whether American or foreign, be made more responsible to the international com-

When Martin arrived Comiskey Park tonight, he asked if there had been any word from New York on Kuhn's hearing into Charles O. Finley's fire sale. He was told that the commissioner would have a decision to orrow.

"What about the champion. "What about the champion-ship season he's holding up?" Martin asked. "Bine isn't here today. He's gotta fly all the way from California. I guess they don't win it. We have a championship season going on and when people have these meet-ings going on, they should take that into consideration. Selling a human being for $1.5 million is not really more obscene than trading a man for a turkey, as Joe Engel did when he was the Charley Finley of the Southern Asso-ciation. It just seems that way beause it is more vulgar. Commenting yesterday on the unappetizing activity in Baseball's flesh market, Dave Anderson wondered why the Yankees were willing to give Finley $1.5 million for Vida, Blue when they had been unwilling to give Andy Messersmith, a pitcher whose talents are comparable with Blue's, more than $200,000 as a bonus. The answer

Sports is that owners like George M. Steinbrenner 3d are men of lofty principle. By the rules of of their religion, it is immoral to debauch The Times players with large sums of money but permissible and sometimes admirable to en-

When Finley sold Blue, Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers for $3.5 million, he was honoring one of the most secred tenets of the baseball faith. The right to buy and sell men like which beseball's hired flacks extolled as the salvation of the sport last winter when the system was under attack in the courts.

Without outright ownership of his employees, which is conferred upon him by the reserve system, Falley could not have sold Bine, Fingers and Rudi like other livestock and he couldn't have traded off Reggie Jackson and Ken Holtzman the way a hunter swaps a bird dog for a doubleharreled 12-gauge shotgun.

Never has the reserve system had a stouter champion than Calvin Griffith, owner of the Minnesota Twins, v.ho has often declared that if players were not bound to their team, the rich clubs would hire away all the Rod Carews and Bert Blylevens and roin baseball. Curiously, Griffith did not applaud when Finley exercised the right a reserve system gives him.

The Insult Deadly

"This type of deal will ruin baseball," Calvin said. "Only the Yankees and Red Sox make deals like these. They're the only clubs with that kind of money, I think it is a terrible thing when two clubs go out there and start bidding to see who can buy a championship team."
To view Calvin's statement in perspective, it helps to remember (a) that he got only $300,000 cash when he sold Blyleven three weeks ago and (b) he went out there and started bidding for Blue but stopped bidding when the price went up.

"It's a shama for such a thing to happen," said Bob Howsam, president of Cincinnati's World champions. "I'm concerned about a person who comes into baseball and does such a thing. It's too bad he [Finley] can't approach the situation on a more sound basis. I just hope this doesn't become commonplace."

Lest this create an impression that Howsam thinks buying and selling players is a shame, it should be men-tioned that he has bought and sold many players, but not even a single million changed hands in any of his deals. In Bob's lexicon, "approaching the situation on a more sound basis" means taking less than the market will bear. If he were to sell Johnny Bench or Joe Morgan or Pete Rose, he would undountedly put a ceiling of, say, $500,000 on offers and reject anything above that.

Incidentally, Griffith owes an apology to Ray Kroc, Phil Wrigley, Gussie Busch, Bob and Ruly Carpenter and others. When he says the Yankees and Red Sox are the only other than the says the Yankees and red Sox are the only clubs that have "that kind of money," he drags Kroc, Wrigley, Busch and the Carpenters down to his financial level, a deadly insult.

The Price of Flesh

Tom Yawkey's role as the biggest single spender at Finley's bazaar is historically interesting because the owner of the Red Sox is always held up as the horrid example proving that you cannot buy a winner. Yawkey demonstrated this away back in the 1920's and 30's when he unbuckled tha wallet for stars like Joe Cronin, Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg, Jammy Foxx, Bing Miller, Max Bishop and others, and saw-them all wear out before he saw a pennant over Fenway Park in 1946.

Apparently Yawkey learned nothing from that experience, for here he is laying out his millions again to buy another pennant for the team that won last year on merit. If ha succeeds, Boston fans will rejoice, wasting no sympathy on Oakland fans. Sympathy is in short supply these days, so short that nobody has a word for Chuck Tanner, a good man who took the job as manager of the A's in good faith and now has no team left to manage.

It is the price of human flesh that has scandakzed the baseball establishment, not the barter of burnan flesh. All professional sports are callous about buying and selling people, though some have to get hardened to it. Peahead Walker, who was best known as a football coach, once managed a baseball team in the Deep South for a new owner, a hardware merchant whose ability to drive a hard bargain had made him successful in several fields. The club owned a catcher named Aaron Robinson who had caught the Yankees fancy.

"Now listen, Peahead," the owner said. "George Weiss is coming after Robinson, or sending a man down. You sit in with us but let me do the talking because that's my business. He'll offer $5,000, I'll ask $15,000 and we'll settle for $10,000, but you keep quiet."
"Til give you $5,000 for Robinson," said George Weiss or the man ba sent. "I'd like to speak to you outside, Peahead," the owner said. When the door closed behind them he said: "Peahead, I sold lumber and did good, I sold coal and made money and now I'm selling hardware, but this is the first time I ever sold a man I'm taking the $5,000."

Yankees Finley Defends Sales In Hearing by Kuhn

ie Kuhn held a 90-minute hearing yesterday on the mass sale of star players by the Oakland A's, but made no immediate move to nullify the $3.5 million deal with the New York Yankees and Bos-

The key witness at the hearing was Charles O. Fin-ley, the controversial owner of the Oakland team, who made a ringing defense of the sale and who said: "I only regret that I didn't sell more of them. I hope to wake the of them. I hope to wate the stupid owners to the facts of reality."

When the eight baseball officials and 10 lawyers end-ed the meeting in Kuhr's of-fice at Rockefeller Plaza, the commissioner said a decision was at hand and added:

"They have complied with the rules. But there remains the overriding question of whether the transaction is in the best interests of baseball. I could make a decision this evening or tomorrow.

A Revolutionary Year Kuhn left his office in midevening, though, without reaching any decision and said that be expected to make one today. Until the commissioner acts, the three players in-volved in the immediate sale remain on the Oakland roster but will not play for any-body. They are Vida Blue, the pitcher, who was sold to the Yankees for $1.5 million; and Joe Rudi, the outfielder, and Rollie Fingers, the ace relief pitcher, who were sent to the Red Sox for $1 million

The decision, though, would not reverse any of the other deals that have been swirling through baseball this year. The traffic started after two Federal courts ruled that major leaguers could play out their contract options and become free agents. Since then, Andy Messersmith auctioned himself to

The biggest lead in major-league baseball grew a little bit larger last night. The Philadelphia Phillies, atop the National League's Eastern Division, contioued to pile victory on top of victory, downing the San Francisco Giants, 3-2, at Philadelphia.

COUNTRY FUN FOR KIDS GIVE FRESH AIR FUND

By MICHAEL STRAUSS Laz Barrera, who this season has been in the winner's circle to greet such stakes winners as Bold Forbes, Life's Hope and Diligence, was back at his familiar stand yesterday at Belmont Park This time, the Cuban-born At the Race trainer turned out Tracks to greet a member of his string who had been unsuccessful in all eight of his previous starts this year.

The thoroughbred was Aaron U. Jones's Blue-Times, a 5-year-old son of Olden Times who earned $98,861 last season while triumphing three times in 21 races.

Blue Times's success was scored in the $25,000 Sea-neen, a 1 1-16-mile contest on turf. The crowd of 15,340, obviously impressed by the atallion's last outing — he was third in a mile event on turf — sent him to the post as the $7.40-for-$2 favorite. With Angel Cordero aboard, Blue Times came off the pace to score in 1:41 1/5. The closest to Blue Times as he rushed under the wire

An overnight sale of Handsome Tod, a 4-year-old son of Dr. Fager, by Irwin Feiner to Dennis Mosca for an undisclosed sum, caused an unusual situation yesterday at the New York City's Official Relating Corporation's Relating White Plans Busic Hall 153 offices.

The victorious Umbrella Man, running as an entry with Campaigner, returned $18.40, $7.80 and $4 across the board for a $2 ticket at the board for a Belmont. At OTB, the payoffs came to $8, $3.30 and $3. At the track, Low Return returned $5 for place and $3.20 for show. At OTB, the pay-offs were $10.20 and $5.80. is trying to adjust from the and its ability to surf over score card in the first four ASSOCIATION ISLAND. N.Y., June 17-A few miles from here, at the edge of a Tempest, a keel boat that meadow filled with grazing cows, a small billboard disweighs only half a ton fully rigged and has a hiking trapeze for the crewman.

"It's a lot different here from the America's Cup,". Conner noted. "In the Cup, you have so much support. The designer, the syndicate manager, all kinds of people. Here, It's just you and your partner."

"I'm not really attached to it that much to give it a name," Commer said. "It's just 318."

Designed in England, the fin-keel Tempest became an Olympic Class in 1968. It carries almost as much sail as the larger, heavier Soling

12-Meter, a 70-foot sloop that the water rather than carries a crew of 11 and through it encourages some weighs 20 tons, to the 22-foot of its admirers to call it "a planing keelboat."

Comer and Findley, a 46year-old ocean yachtsman who won an Olympic gold medal in pair-oared rowing 20 years ago, hadn't sailed a Tempest together until last. December, They didn't enter a Tempest regatta until last. March.

When they finished third in that event, a pre-Olympic training contest in Florida, the magazine Yacht Racing concluded: "Dennis Conner has a long way to go before he can pull his act together sufficiently to be a real force in the Tempest Class." But the act was looking good to-day as Comer and Findlay tried to hold the form that had brought them a 3-2-2-1 races. Regardless of what happened today, the worstrace throwaway system made it certain they would retain their lead. .

Buddy Meiges, a gold medalist four-years ago, lost his Soling Class lead today after five races. Two races remain. On a day of light and lukey air that rarely exceeded 10 knots, the Wisconsin skipper and his two crewmen finished 11th in a 24-boat fleet. The new leader in the Soling Class is John Kolius of Laport, Tex., who won today's race. Robble Haines, with a California crew that includes Lowell North, moved into second with a third place finish as Melges dropped to third in Policy on Trial...

Secretary of State Kissinger's new African policy is undergoing a severe test-both in Washington and in southern Africa itself-even before it has heen accepted across the United States Government. The opeo question, as racial tensions erupt ioto violence, is whether or not this country's diplomatic interest has been expressed too late to be felt where it could count.

The sudden deathly outhreaks in the South African township of Soweto come scarcely a week before Mr. Kissinger's scheduled meeting in West Germany with Prime Minister Vorster, Combined with ongoing and escalating guerrilla attacks against the white-dominated regime of Rhodesia, the riots conjure up the specter of unchecked racial violence.

Last April, when Secretary Kissinger finally turned hia attention to Africa and the political tensions long building in the southern quarter of that continent, he presented an amhitious and forward-looking statement of policy. Speaking in the Zambian capital of Lusaka, be said the United States stood firmly oo the side of majority rule in Rhodesia, and was prepared to reverse previous policies that had encouraged the minority white rulers of the land which the African majority calls

The United States Senate appeared to muff the first concrete test of this policy Monday when it succumbed to a conservative filihuster threat and elimioated from the foreign aid hill a program for $12.5 million in economic aid to Mozamhique. Fortunately, a House-Senate cooference found a way in which this program can be reinstated. As Mr. Kissinger pledged io his April 27 Lusaka speech, such aid is essential to help Mozamhique overcome the economic hardships caused by the closing of its horders with Rhodesia, in response to United Nations sanctions.

Conflicting Signals

Another of the ten points in Mr. Kissinger's Lusaka speech was the promise to work for repeal of the notorious Byrd Amendment, which permits the United States to import Rhodesian chrome in defiance of the U.N. sanctions. On this issue, as well as Mozambique aid, there has been ample room for skepticism about the degree of President Ford's commitment to the Kissinger policy- particularly since it is under attack by conservative forces inside Congress and the Repub-

Further confusion is generated by Defense Secretary. Rumsfeld's foray into African politics, expressing American readiness to supply costly and sophisticated weaponry to Kenya and Zaire. Whatever may be the specific justification for an individual transaction, the portrayal of the United States as an arms merchant only emphasizes great-power rivalry in Africa-precisely the perspective which brought such grief in Angola and the Lusaka policy seemed designed to correct

Despite Its positive aspects, that policy immediately ran the risk of stimulating unfulfillable expectations among moderate African leaders who cheered the new American attitude. The first possibilities of disenchantment came with the announcement of the Kissioger-Vorster meeting, the first high-level encounter hetween Washington and Pretoria in two decades. The enthusiasm with which white South Africans greeted the announcement, in contrast to Washington's understandable restraint, was no help.

And now, outhursts of racial hatred just 10 miles from Johannesburg set a tragic scene. If the United States and South Africa can reach an understanding that will move Prime Minister Vorster to exert influence on the beleaguered white Rhodesians, leading them to accept majority rule, then the meeting oext week will have heen worth the risks iovolved,

But if, for its part, the United States Government remaios divided, and the same forces that oearly scotched aid to Mozambique can prevail to retain the Byrd Amendment, then this country may have lost its capacity to prevent southern Africa's rush Into disaster.

Privacy and the I.R.S.

Two years ago, when Congress established the Privacy Protection Study Commission, it specifically asked that group to determine whether the Internal Revenue Service should be allowed to make individual tax returns or individually identifiable data from those returns available to other Government agencies. In its first report, the commission, headed by David Linowes, has called -correctly we helieve-for significant new limitations on such access to individual tax returns. Thus, the Linowes commission has asked for the restoration of the kind of privacy that most ordinary taxpayers always thought their dealings with the I.R.S. enjoyed.

For many individuals the Federal tax return-with its details oo sources and amounts of income and on such diverse information as contributions to charity and the extent of business entertainment-is the most comprehensive act of presumably confidential disclosure performed each year. Yet, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Donald C. Alexaoder, revealed last March that in recent years thousands of individual tax returns have been turned over to the Department of Justice for use in non-tax-related cases, while other returns have been opened to inspection by the Securities and Exchange Commission and other agencies. Income tax returns have also been used routinely by many Federal prosecutors checking persons called for jury duty.

The Linowes commission's report argues that tax returns "should not be coosidered a generalized governmental asset" and notes that "substantial harm" can be inflicted on an individual as a result of such disclosure. The commission therefore has asked Congress to enact legislation to permit the involuntary or secret transmission of income tax data to other agencies only if they have secured appropriate court orders authorizing transfer of this information. Taxpayers involved would be informed of any requests for such court orders, affording them an opportunity to contest their issuance. Such minimal protection of privacy should have been adopted long ago.

Equal Justice?

Bernard Bergman was brought to justice yesterday. He got four months.

In imposing sentence, United States District Judge Marvin Frankel said, "I've undertaken to impose sentence on what you did and admitted; and not what was reported and rumored." It therefore is hardly useful, in discussing the aeotence, to rehearse the history of Mr. Bergman's iovolvement in the nursing-home husioess. It is worth noting, however, that after his arrest. Mr. Bergman entered into negotiations with the prosecutor which resulted in his ples of guilty to a charge of consplring to commit fraud against the United States, a felooy carrying a top sentence of five years, and of filing a false income-tax return, another felony, carrying a top sentence of three years.

Judge Frankel said that Mr. Bergman's "imperfect" health," the fact that he was a first offender and had been 'pilloried io the press," along with considerationsof his earlier "unimpeachable high character, attainments and distinction," had an impact on the sentencing process. As a result, on charges of defrauding the Government of $1.2 million and filing a false return, Mr. Bergman was sentenced to four months in prison.

One of the most prominent current theories is that sentences abould serve to deter others from committing similar crimes. Though this view is most regularly applied to street crime, it would seem to be substantially more applicable to white-collar criminals to whom prison is much more jarring than to criminals who live at society'a economic and social margins. Yet, Mr. Bergman now joins a parade of formerly respectable whitecollar criminals who have received sentences which make the odds oo white-collar crime look rather good.

A second popular ootion about sentencing is that it should show the criminal justice system to be evenbanded. At a time-when the Legislature is moving toward mandatory sentences of three years for juveniles convicted of serious crimes, a four-month sentence for a rich felon, guilty of a million-dollar fraud, 'can' only reinforce cynicism about the realities of equal justice

Pinning the Tail

Political "Establishments" have taken on such unsavory connotations that candidates for statewide office in New York now try their best to avoid being tagged as the choice of their respective parties' state committees. Democrats in particular recall that two years ago four out of their five cominees for statewide office-Hugh L. Carey, Mary Anne Krupsak, Robert J. Abrams and Ramsey Clark - were all chosen by voters in the primary over those designated by the party leaders. A consequence is this week's ludicrous performance in which Democratic Senatorial candidates fought to round up committee votes for their opponents in the bope of weighing each other down with the burden of being the "bosses' choice."

In this variation of pin-the-tail-oo-the-donkey, City Council President Paul O'Dwyer was the disgusted "winner." Like his rivals, he would have welcomed the 25 percent or more votes needed to get him on the ballot without his baving to go to the expense and difficulty of first getting 20,000 signatures on petitions. He would even have been satisfied to win the 8S percent of votes he ultimately amassed if he had received them on the first ballot and thereby eliminated much of his competition. Instead, be will now have to contend for the liberal vote with both Representative Bella Abzug, who got enough votes to preclude having to go the hard petition route, and Mr. Clark, who successfully performed that feat two years ago.

The traditionally anti-Establishment Mr. O'Dwyer can now expect to be pinned down as the Establishment's candidate. He owes the honor of his committee endorsement in part to Abzug votes, once they were no longer needed to assure the Congresswoman a place on the ballot, and much more to those similarly thrust upon him by supporters of Daniel P. Moynihan, former American Ambassador to the United Nations. Not surprisingly, Mr. O'Dwyer found the Moynihan maneuver "abhorrent" and Mrs. Abzug scorned it as part of a "Stop Bella"

Both analyses carry a high degree of probability, bot in view of the state committee's political ineffectiveness and the declining value of its designation, a profounder sentiment was voiced by Meade Esposito, one of the "bosses" in question. "This whole thing," said the Brooklyn leader, "was an exercise in futility." That is the best that can be said for it.

La Scala, Act II

After a libretto of troubles that matched those in almost any Italian opera, La Scala of Milan will finally come to Kennedy Center in Washington this September. Following 14 performances there, Europe's most-renowned opera company will perform Verdi's "Requiem" in Philadelphia and New York-the first time in its 198year-old history that the Teatro alla Scala will fill the air with music in the United States.

The first act was all darkness last March when the visit was cancelled because of the depreciation of the lira. The original Italian equivalent of $1.1 million appropriated in 1974 had shrunk to $840,000. An additional $330,000 now has been raised in this country, the stagehands' union has agreed to forgo a wage increase for a month, and the Italian Government has made a further

And so the second act is a prelude to the great finale when La Scala comes here to show, along with New York's own Metropolitan, how grand grand opera can be.

Criminal Justice: An Inmate's View

To the Editor: Your May 29 editorial "Rational Seotencing" asked a very important question about our criminal-justice system: What purpose does incarceratioo serve? Having been confined for eighteen of the past 23 years, I can assure you, Senator Kennedy or any of the almost 1,000 senteoring Federal judges that rehabilitation is a facade, punishment is a joke (and punishment for the sole sake of punishment only results in retributive reactions), protection of the law-abiding is virtually. nonexistent and uncertainty of release from prison is precipitous of violence and disorder. If the Congress intends to do anything, it should revamp the entire criminal-justice system: (1) adopt fixed sentences that cannot be corrupted by the judiciary; (2) abolish the politically patronized U.S. Parole Commission (following the example of recent actions by the State of Maine, which recognized that parole per se is a failure; (3) lift the tacit moratorium on prison expansion, thus reducing overcrowding (which results in explosive situations), and (4) make a definitive, nonpolitical statement to the American people as to just what purpose criminal justice is to serve.

While the Congress perennially slashes the Federal Bureau of Prisons' hudget, the Senate Judiciary Committee just gave approval for yet another $5.4 billion to be poured into a questionable Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. If one looks closely at certain L.E.A.A. disbursements, one can see much of this appropriation utilized for funding such items as per diem stipends for "professionals" to attend faraway conferences on crime (90 percent of which are unproductive). While our national defense is extremely important, what good is a strong international posture if our citizenry cannot venture from their

The question is: Where will it all end? The crime problem has transcended the threshold of our outional tolerance. One rational resolution is unlimited Congressional appropriations or perhaps monies from the Treasury's Exchange Stabilization Fund, to completely revemp the criminal-justice system, from the level of the cop on the beat all the way to the elevated (and sometimes pompous) heights of our Federal judiciary, with effective utilization of corrections facilities that do serve all the functions mentioned above, and to decriminalize victimless crimes auch as prostitution,

Dog City

To the Editor: To those brave volunteers from Abingdon Square Park who are trying to keep dogs out of their children's playground - welcome aboard! For some time the Carl Schurz Park Association has been fighting a similar battle oo the Upper East Side. And the first of all organizations, Children Before Dogs, has been working for a cleaner and safer city for more than ten years. Now people from the Murray Hill section, Riverside and Central Park, Washington Square Park, Tompkins Square Park and several other neighborhood groups have joined together to form the New York Coalition for Dog Cootrol. How long must this battle rage? How many hours, days and years must we who want a clean city spend fighting those who blatantly disregard the wishes of the majority and allow their dogs to litter all over the city? When are dog owners gning to realize that the time has come when New Yorkers will no looger sit still and take the daily onslaught of dogs, dogs and more dogs.

be solved in 48 hours if the City of New York Health Department would recognize the health and safety issue and admit that dog feces do spread disease and dog bites are a health hazard: Theo the Police, Department would have to enforce the current leash and litter laws. And then the energies of thousands of New Yorkers can be directed to other things, instead of forming committees to fight the dog menace and alerting all New. Yorkers to the problem.

Of Prudence, Swine Flu and Elephants

In response to your June 8 editorial "Swine Flu False Alarm?" I am borrified to think that cautioo and foresight are condemned while a callous. and foolhardy policy of wait and see is recommended instead History reveals to us that lack of prudence and the inability or unwillingness of governments to act upoo potentially dangerous situations have plunged mankiod into disaster. Witness the refusal of the European allies during the 1930'a to abort the actions of Adolf Hitler and his encroachment upon Germany's neighboring territories. Just as Chamberlaio and his contemporaries took decisive action only after the storm had been imd, so you advise Congress to act "only if there is real evidence of the awine flu epidemic later this year or next year." By "real evidence" I presume you mean the death of several bundred Americans.

That you can, in essence, propose the use of human beings as guines pigs for the proof of the possible existence of the epidemic is preposterous. Tha argument that the receivers of the first vaccines are also guinea pigs falls down on one very significant factor: The vaccinations, and their outcome, can be controlled by the Government simply by halting the program; however, the epidemic, if once unleashed, cannot be controlled by a Congressional decree to balt the

For these reasons let us hope that the Government adopts a prudent policy concerning the possible outbreak of swine flu. BRIDGET NICHOLSON Baltimore, June 8, 1976

It will work, you know. There will be no epidemic. Tackson's 'Misguided Fiat'

To the Editor: I am disenfranchised by Senator Jackson's decision to endorse Jimmy Carter. I worked as a volunteer in New York and Massachusetts to help Senator Jackson and to defeat Jimmy Carter. The voters of New York resoundingly endorsed Senator Jackson and rejected Jimmy Carter.

Senator Jacksoo's misguided fiat freeing his delegates to vote for Carter should oot be allowed to reverse the results of democratic elections. Senator Jacksoo did not elect his delegates; the people did. The Jackson delegates owe their first loyalty to the people. Wherein Future Shock Is Disputed

Future shock is a myth. Future shock is the false journalistic premise that the pace of change has accelerated, discomforting everyone.

But change is not crowding in. I'm not assembed because too much is happening too fast. To "time out" miwanted information, I simply dial another television channel, refuse to listen to offensive commercials, or silence my telephone when I want no

And change-from scientific and technological innovations is not rushing at us faster than it used to. Not only is the notion of future shock misleading worse, it's widely believed.

From Biblical times, people have said that change is speeding up. But what does that mean? That a typical day in A.D. 1976 New York is busier than a typical day in 423 B.C. Athens?

Social implications of future shock are said to be social dislocation, rootlessuess, alienation, confusion; sensory overload - the temporal equivalent of "culture shock" If society suffers these maladies (and I doubt it) then we'll have to look elsewhere for theirsource. Because there's no such thing as future shock. And I can prove it. Let's examine data on incubatico

Between 1953 and 1972 at least 300 private and 60 government firms entered the industry, and in 1972 there were at least 50 integrated interoational oil companies in operation. The entrants carved out for themselves large shares of the market. Crude oil production exploded from three million-barrels per day in 1948 to 31 million barrels per day in 1972. Prices of crude oil and its products fell consistently from 1957 up to 1970, when the OPEC began to exercise its growing power. The market shares of the biggest companies changed unsystematically from year to year.

.. Returns on foreign oil investment rell sharply after 1957 and fluctuated within a range of 11 percent to 14 percent a year right up to 1972about equal to the average returns on United States investment in foreign manfacturing industries.

To break up the large American oil companies would cripple the ability of a fractionated industry to finance highrisk exploration in the continental shelves and the Artic where-wa hope -large reserves remain to be discovered. It would diminish the financial capacities of surviving times to finance research and development aimed at producing fuels from shale, coal and tar sands as well as from exotic sources.

Mr. Carter's Origins

By Tom Wicker

In a conversation with reporters aboard his campaign plane the other night, Jimmy Carter talked about his political origins in a way that may tell us something about where the nation may be heading if he is elected President.

"When I ran for governor [of Geor-gia] in 1966 and 1970," he said, as recorded by James T. Wooten of The New York Times, "I told people that conservatism did oot mean racism. But if I had gooe in and said, 'All of you are wrong. You shouldn't have done what you did. I'm better than you are'... I wouldn't have been elected. wouldn't have gotten more than 10 percent of the votes.

"The point I'm making is that the South, including Georgia, has moved forward primarily because it hasn't been put into the position of having to renounce itself. You've got to give people credit for the progress they make and the changes in their attitudes"

It was easy, Mr. Carter said, for people to say in hindsight that there never should have been a war in Vietnam or racial discrimination in the South. But at one time, he pointed out, Congress, the Supreme Court and every state (he might have added most Presidents) accepted racial segregation. The. implication was that most Americans at one time had accepted the Vietnam War, too and that neither they nor the South could be asked to renounce

That's quite different from, say, George McGovern's "Come home, America" theme of 1972. Mr. McGovem actually meant to say that American purposes in the world had been perverted; but he was heard by many Americans to be saying, "All of you were wroog on the Vietnam war. I'm better than you are. Renounce yourselves."

Mr. Carter's message, io contrast, has been that "what we need is a government as good as our people' coupled with a promise to provide such a government. This concedes past errors and misdeeds without demanding that people renounce themselves, and it reflects a political understanding that comes naturally to a Southern' politician of modern times.

In a massive new book, "The Transformation of Southern Politics," to be published by Basic Books next September, Jack Bass and Walter De Vries tell, for instance, of a black state representative in Georgia who said of a white representative who had used the race issue in a campaign: "I know that when we close the door and get in a smoke-filled room that we can count on him. And I also know that he's got to win for us to [benefit]. And so I understand that."

In discussing Georgia politics of recent years, Bass and De Vries argue that the golden Republican opportunity of the mid-sixties failed because the party remained "narrowly conservative in ideology and country club in image' and its major candidates "failed to make even symbolic moves to attract blacks or liberals." But they see Mr. Carter and other Democrats as symbolizing "tha consensus politics that dominates the contemporary Georgia Democratic Party," which retains oneparty dominance.

"The Democratic coalition," they write, "consists of blacks, courthouse Democrats who have learned the benefits of black allegiance to the Democratic Party, a developing role for organized labor, rural whites with a Democratic heritage who remain suspicious of urban Republicans and their country club image, a few white urban liberals, and the top echeloo of the business and financial community. . . . The self-interest of the business elite merges with blacks and workingclass whites in the broad quest for modernizatioo and economic develop-

The Carter campaign so far resembles an effort to build something like that consensus outside Georgia, And while Mr. Carter may not be aiming literally at "ooe-party dominance" of the whole country, a victory for him in the November election does raise that possibility.

Every Republican oational election victory since Dwight Eisenhower has been heavily aided by the Southern states. Every projection of a conservative national majority relies on the idea of a solidly conservative Republican South, The rise of Jimmy Carter, also based oo Southern support, oot only threatens Republican prospects in the South for 1976 but also the idea of a conservative Republican South in the future.

Mr. Carter's Southern victories over George Wallace symbolize the political fact-a new, moderate consensus of whites and blacks, busioess elites and the working class, replacing racism, law-and-order conservatism and the old economic exploitation. If Jimmy Carter can make that consensus bold in the South, he and the national Democratic Party will have left Republicans almost oo place to go."

The other is for him to take charge of a "Committee on Hnlocaust Studies," again concerned with education at the secondary school level.

A third suggestion was made orally at yesterday's sentencing hearing. It was proposed that Dr. Bergman might be ordered to work as a volunteer in some established agency as a visitor and aide to the sick and the otherwise incapacitated. The proposal was that be could read, provide various forms of physical assistance, and otherwise give comfort to af-

No one can doubt either the worthiness of these proposals or Dr. Bergman's abil-ity to make successess of them. But both of the carefully formulated "sauctions" in the memorandum involve work of an honnrific nature, not unlike that done in other projects to which the defend-ant has devoted himself in the past. It is difficult to cnnceive of them as "punish-ments" at all. The more recent proposal is somewhat more suitable in character, but it is still an insufficient penalty. The seriousness of the crimes to which Dr. Berg-man has plead guilty de-mands something more than "requiring" him to lend his talents and efforts to further philanthropic enterprises. It remains open to him, of course, to pursue the interesting suggestions later on as a matter of unforced personal choice. Defendant invokes an un-

This court has examined the minutes of that senteocing proceeding and finds the case distinguishable in material respects. But even if there were a threat of such disparity as defendant warns

I am extraordinarily disappointed by the sentence that Dr. Bergman received today. One wonders whether essential justice has been accomplished when a man such as Bernard Bergman is given this kind of sentence. I am also saddened about

-those who lived in one of Bernard Bergman's nursing homes. I believe they must feel abandoned and alone ooce again.

As for those destined to spend time in a nursing home in later years one out of every five elderly Americans will do so-what are they to think?

Our continued investigation into the rousing home indus-try may, I fear, be adversely affected by this sentence. Con-cerned citizens, families and employees in nursing homes where stealing and abuse is going on even today may now think twice before cooperating with this office.

Morris Abram, in his Moreland Commission report to the Governor, prophesied that if vigilance wasn't exercised we could face a repeat of the nursing home scandai in five or 10 years. The sentence handed to Bernard Bergman today does little to belie the fears expressed by Mr. Abram. New York has done more then any other state to cor-rect its nursing home prob-lems: Millians of dollars and vast amounts of manpower have been poured into the task of cleaning up the nursing home industry.

He suggested strongly that the men had been in the employ of what he called an "outside power." [A 1:6-7.]

Metropolitan The New York State Court of Appeals unanimously declared unconstitutional the section of the state's blue laws that forbids the asie on Sunday of windshield-wiper blades, ski wax, take-out fried chicken and thousands of other items. The court found that parts of the Sabbath closing law rarely enforced by the police and routinely disregarded by thousands of business-were unconstitutionally defective." The court reversed its previous decisions that upheld the constitutionality of the closing law. [A1:1-2.] The State Court of Appeals also ruled un-animously that the Legislature could vote a limited number of extra allowances called "lulus"—to supplement legislators' salaries this year. The court reversed two lower-court decisions that declared lulus unconstitutional, ending a year of controversy and litigation. [Al:4.]

Senator James L. Buckley was endorsed by a wide margin by the Republican State Committee for re-election this year over Representative Peter Peyser of Westchester County, Mr. Peyser said he would challenge Mr. Buckley in the Republican primary. If he gets on the ballot by means of designating petitions he will force the first state wide Republican primary in 55 years. The winner of that primary would run against the Democrats who are seeking to replace

Mr. Buckley. [Al:3-5.] Bernard Bergman, the mursing-home operator, was sentenced to four months in a Federal correction center for Medicaid and tax frauds. Charles J. Hynes, the special-prosecutor in nursing-home investigations, denounced the sentence as too lenient and charged that Mr. Bergman had reneged on a plea bargain, and he threatened to reopen the prosecution of the Bergman family in state courts. [A1:7-8.]

The New Jersey State Senate broke with its tradition against an income tax and voted for a 1.5 percent levy on personal income. The vote was 21 to 19, the minimum needed for approval. It was the Senate's seventh attempt in two and half years to pass an income tax bill. The bill now goes to the Assembly where it is expected to face strong opposition. [A1:1-2.]

However, Mr. Kelly ap-proaches the overall problem of combatting terrorism-before it happens as well as when it happens.

Mr. Kelly was an assistant director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police until March, when he formed his own company, the Institute for Systematic Se-eurity Strategies, Germantown, Md.

He was giving a course this week, at $550, et the Bridgehampton Race Course overlooking Peconic Bay, Mr. Keily, who has college degrees in philosophy and criminology, gave the classroom theories, while Lon Priddle, a professional driver and partowner of the Skip Barber School in Rochester, taught driving techniques on the twisting two-mile roadway. The students? No names, no facial photographs, they insisted. They were top se-curity officials sent by New York State, two private companies end two Latin American companies.

"The way things are these days, there's obviously a coocern," said on of them, an American, "You read something every day." He spoke long before bearing the news from Lebanon.

Intelligent Reaction

About the driving instruction. Perhaps he hed an image of hotrod drivers screaching around the race course. Instead the men were taught to react intelligeotly to suddeo danger on the road -to switch lanes as overhead lights blinked, to swerve around rubber cones, to back up fast if a roadblock developed.

"I think a couple of them were scared," said Mr. Priddle, "but they caught on

Later there were kidnapping situations as instructors raced from behind dunes to demonstrate overtaking from behind, roadblocks and the boxing-out trap, where the target anto is surrounded by licensed, empty revolver was used during a brief demon-stration, but the students did not appear to need props to make the lessons credible.

In his classroom lecture. Mr. Kelly tried to explain terrorism.
"Most security has been concerned with property," he said. "But we're talking here about individuals as well. A company can't afford to lose its president either. This is a capitalistic country. People's jobs depend on the well-being of a corporation.

"In South America, compaoies are giving millions of dollars to meet terrorists' demands. In a way, that's a cor- . porate scandal. They crumble to the threat. If you give mooey to the bad guy—let's mooey to the bad guy—let's call him the bad guy, for our purposes—you're undermining your love, your respect, for that government."

Cutting the Risks

"Let's say," he continued, "some local terrorist comes to a big company and says. Give us $10 million for a new hospital, Well, you should have checked out local conditions already. But let's suppose the area really Why not announce your company is the good guy and is going to build a new hospital and never mention the bad guys? That's one way to cut

Mr. Kelly showed his students the correct way to usher a "subject" by car to a waiting airplane—have the driver face outward, use the car door as a potential shield as the "subject" ducks into the plane.

He was also knowledgeable about familiar assassinations. Discussing how Mr. Trujillo, dictator of the Dominican Republic was killed in 1961, he noted:

Others say it was the C.I.A. "We weren't there, so we don't know for sure, but this is how we think it hap-pened."

He showed slides of a model of a lone car with one chauffeur-bodyguard taking Mr. Trujillo home at night. The students quietly muttered their disapproval of the lack of a second car. Then he showed one "enemy" car in the classic "overtake" po-sition, shooting at the dictator hut doing no harm to him. Then he showed two parked cars athwart the flow of traf-

Witness at Police Trial Says He Helped City Detective Kill a Man in Denver-

By ROBERT E. TOMASSON

A 28-year-old one-time bar tender, ex-convict and decorated Vietnam War veteran gave a matter-of-fact account yesterday, at a Police Department trial, of how, he said, he helped a city detective murder 2 Den ver businessman last October. Without any apperent emo-tion, Terry D'Prero, who has been given immunity from prosecution for his admitted role in the murder, gave a daylong step-by-step account of the murder of Harold Levine, who was shot to death as he sat in his pajamas in the kitch-en of his Denver home on the morning of Oct. 7.

As Mr. D'Prero went through the reasons for the murder and his account of it, Robert Davis, on the police force for 17 years, who is accused of being the who is accused of being the killer for hire, sat at a table taking copious notes in the fourth-floor trial room at Police Head-

Also arrested with Mr. Davis was Michael Borelli, 45, a retired New York City detective who went into business in Denver, and Annunzio F. Unlike the pending murder trial in Denver, the departmen-tal trial does not involve the possibility of prison for Mr. Davis, hut, rather, penalties— mainly the loss of pension— that are within the jurisdiction of the department to impose. For this reason, the police indicated, the two trials did not constitute double jeopardy.

The witness, who is in protective custody, said that on at least three occasions he had had talks with Mr. Borelli, the retired detective, who owned a Denver restaurant with several others, including, at one time used to play hooky inside her high school. She checked in each morning at Seward Park, where she was enrolled four years ago, and then spent the day wandering the halls, avoiding her classes.

Elston Griffith went to "hooky parties" with his friends in Brooklyn's Brownsville section. They were day-time parties, where truants shared cheap wine and reef-ers and "hanged out," as Mr. Griffith put it, while the rest of the world went to school.

Yesterday, Miss Montero and Mr. Griffith were two of the proudest cap and gown wearers in the city. Yester-day they and their class-mates received their high school diplomas in a ceremony in City Hall.

"You weren't supposed to graduate," the graduation speaker, Percy E. Sutton, Borough President of Manhattan, told them, "You were supposed to be the failures." Indeed, the youngsters had once thought so themselves. The school system had also considered them doomed. They had been sent to Liv-ingston High School, a spe-cial public school—formerly known as a "600 school"for students who are rebel-lious, often truants and sometimes serious criminals.

The Livingston School, headed by Dr. Esther Rothman, has about 125 male students and about 100 female students, all of whom were referred there after the regu-lar public high schools had given up on them. At Livingston, the students are encouraged to take part-time jobs in fields that inter-est them while they carry on their academic work. For hoth Miss Montero and Mr.

Griffith, the part-time jobs they held during their enrollment at the school were, they each said, essential sids to their studies.

Mr. Griffith worked as a teacher's aide in a ceramics class at Livingston High School. Now he wents to be an art teacher, and he hopes to go to Parsons School of Design. Miss Montero did typing and filing at Board of Education headquarters in Brooklyn—after the Livingston staff had taught her to at Baruch College and plans to enter there this summer. In his speech to the graduating class, Mr. Sutton talked of the need for self-discipline. Speaking im-promptu because his prepared text had arrived too late, he told the youngsters about his own childhood les-sons in self-discipline, taught to him by a strict father.

Throughout the ceremony which was held in the Board . of Estimate's chamber, teachers from the Livingston School, seemingly as proud as the youngsters' relatives were, snapped photos of the graduating class and mur-mured proud comments to one another. There were 10 names on the program's list of graduates, but one student received her diploma in ab-

Hope Cooke: From Queen of Sikkim to 'Regular' New Yor

Hope Cooke Namgyal, the debutante who 13 years ago married the Crown Prince of Sikkim and became the first American-born woman to be crowned a queen, sat cross-legged yesterday oo the floor of her East Side apartment, sipping tea and watching her children and a oeighhor play.

"The way we live here is not that different from our lives in Sikkim," she said in a low, whispery voice. "I take care of my children here; I took care of them there.

"We had a very 9-to-5 existence there, with johs, duties, responsibilities. I believe that the photographs people aaw of me in ceremonial dress and the photographs of the palace made them assume that we lived like thet all the

It has been three years since the former Gyalmo — or queen — of Sikkim left the country with her two children after her husband, Palden

Thondup Namgyal, tha Chogyal—or ruler—was deposed.
Since then, Mrs. Namgyal, and her children, Palden and Hope, have lived in Manhattan in what the press has referred to as "seclusion" but what she called "a private but regular fashion."

Mrs. Namgyal said yesterday that tha

Shangri-La misconception was one of several that she said the public had of her life today, of the situation in Sikkim and of the reasons for her departure.

Relaxed a Bit

Until now she has refused to he interviewed or photographed, but on Wednesday President Ford signed a private hill granting Mrs. Namgyal and her children permanent residence status in the United States, so she has relaxed a hit and granted an interview yesterday. Mrs. Namgyal, whose American ancestors reach back to the Mayflower, was forced by Sikkimese law to give up her American citizenship when she becama Queen.

"It is lodicrous that people believe we are in hiding," she said. "We left under frightening conditions and wheo we first arrived we were afraid and in shock, But I am no longer concerned about kidnappings as has been re-

Another reason for her reloctance to talk to reporters, she explained, was a fear of being accused of trying to in-fluence the outcome of her petition for citizenship or of the special bill.

"I am no longer in a state of suspense," Mrs. Namgyal said, hrushing her short, reddish-brown hair out of her eyes. "I know now that we will be able to stay here and we just want to get on with our lives."

Yesterday she was wearing a chocolate-colored T-shirt, white cotton slacks and canvas espadrilles. Those who re-member her from the earlier photo-graphs, dressed in flowing robes with her long hair in an upswept bouffant hairstyle, today would not recognize the former queen, who will be 36 years old next week. That lack of recognition is just fine with her.

'That is another reason why I didn't want the papers taking pictures of me and the children," she added. "If you are recognized on a hus or on the street, normal conversation stops and you become what others want you to be. I don't want that for us, so I still don't want to be photographed.

The talk of the public's curiosity over her and her children — the boy is now 12 and the girl is 8 — is an obvious irritant. In a way she resents the fact that so much attention has been paid to their personal losses but little to problems of the country and its people.

"It is a heartbreaking situation, Mrs. Nameyal said. "Heartbreaking not because of the loss of my husband's per-sonal power, but because of what has happened to the country.

Sitting in her living room, surrounded by low, comfortable furniture, tropical plants, Sikkimese carpets and artifacts and the childrens' toys and records, Mrs. Namgyal talked about why she gave up her United States citizenship, why she left the country and what her future plans are.

She has been hurt by charges that she gave up her citizenship easily just to hecome Queen, and that now the situation is changed she wants it back. "Giving up my passport was not an easy decision." she said. "But Sikkimese law does not allow dual citizenship because of its size. They have been fearful that people would become citizens, buy land but not live there, not participate io the country's activities."

"And ton, I felt that that act would reflect my interest, integrity and sincerity as an American and as a Sikkimese. I didn't want my American education and ideals to be politically misconstrued as being the actions of an 'American arm' in the Himalayas."

She and the children, Mrs. Namgyal explained, left when they did because they had to; it hecame too dangerous to stay any longer.

"By August my being there seemed to be counterproductive," sha said. "I, being American, became the target for people who wanted to say that Sikkim's special identity, independence and needs existed only in my mind and public

What she regrets tha most, she said, was that she was afraid the changes she and her husband strove for in educational advancements and in promotion of the arts and cottage industries of sikkim may be lost. Touring the City

For the three of them, the last few years have been spent getting situated in their new apartment ("We left with practically nothing—just getting furniture was a problem," touring the city and visiting Mrs. Namgyal's friends in New York and from Sarah Lawrence College of which the care during College of which she is e graduate.

High Society Hails Taxis At Museum

Taxi! All those folks who usually purt along in limousines with interesting license plates switched to cabs the other night at the Museum of Modern Art, They didn't have any trouble catching them, but then the taxis weren't going anywhere. The museum's annual spring benefit party ceotered on two American and three Europeandesigned cahs that form the oewest exhibit, called "Taxi."

The cars certainly proved that a taxi needn't fit a rider like an iron luog.

Although the museum hadn't meaot the exhibit to be a "please touch" affair, there was no stopping the 1,500 merrymakers from climbing in and out of the cabs, bouncing oo the seats and doing some just-for-fun smoothing in the hack seats.

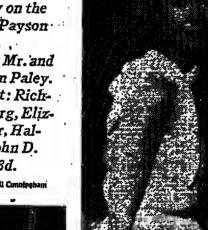

They looked like an especially welldressed cast for a Marx Brothers movie; Rockefellers, Phippses and Paleys in chiffons and iewels or black tie tried out not only the cabs, but also some of the wheel chairs they were equipped with, Halston escorted his newest "sweeticake," Elizabeth Taylor, who naturally wore one of his popular tunic-and-pants numbers. Hers was hlue chiffon, Babe Paley wore a similar one in white.

Francis Kellogg opened a cab door and caught his wife necking with Tiffany's president, Harry Platt. Mr. Kellogg wasn't upset—after all, that's what cabs are for. Jane Conningham wore the perfect taxi dress: a white jersey Sant'Angelo with a skirt slit to the waist, and got appreciative whistles as she climbed in and out.

There wasn't a genuine, tough-talking New York cabbie at the party, but the fleet owners were represented: Ethel Sculi wore "Scull's Angels" dress and emphatically did not ride a cab with her estranged hushand, Robert.

"I come home from work and we have dinner and I help out with homework when necessary. But it is very difficult to be a parttime disciplinarian, to lay down rules and not he around to enforce themfor example, I know Noah watches television much more than I'd like, and there's little I can do about

"The toughest moment for me," he admitted, "is when the children go off to school on Thursday morning, and I know they're oot going to be here that evening when I come home. They'll be at their mother's. What do I miss most? A sense of everyday life with the kids."

Builders Association, the moving force behind the builders' latest effort to ward off Government regulation by adopting industry standards. The New York State builders' approach is this: builders who qualify will offer home huyers a comprehensive one-year guarantee against spe-cific types of structural damage in new homes, plus the bonding of the buyers' down-payment. The bonding means that if the builder cannot complete and deliver the new home, the buyer is assured of the return of his down-

In New York City, with the Qualified Builders Program in effect for two months, 35 home builders have already applied for membership, and about half have been ap-proved, according to Joseph Margolis, executive vice pres-ident of the New York City Publisher According based in Builders Association, based in Staten Island. All of this is somewhat dif-ferent from the approach adopted by the National Association of Home Builders under its Home Owners Warranty, or HOW, program. That was billed as "America's first nationally insured, 10-year homebuyer protection program." The principle was that builders who qualified could offer a 10-year protection against structural damage. At a cost to the buyer of $2 per $1,000 of home purchase price, the buyer got a two-year builder warranty and an additional eight years of insurance against structural defects.

The New York State situation was colored by the fact that four building companies, operating mainly in Rockland County and northern West-chester, went bankrupt before the completion and delivery

The downpayments of about 100 homehuyers were placed in jeopardy, because banks and suppliers had a prior lien on builders assets after foreclosure procedures began.
According to Mr. Wieboldt, in "at least 50" cases the deposits have found their way back to the purchasers. The average deposit was $5,000,

Usually the buyers who re-covered entered the foreclo-sure actions as third parties, and the banks decided it would be "easier" to pay them than allow them to complicate the foreclosure

Out of this situation developed legislation allowing but not mandating cities, towns and villages to require that buyers' downpayments be placed in escrow or bonded Eleven communities out of 1,500 in the state have adopted such regulations, Mr. Wieboldt said

Legislative interest in mandating that downpayments be placed in escrow has not died. The industry calls this "overkill," however. Statewide, it would mean that builders would have to borrow an additional $90 million for home construction (10 percent of the estimated $900 million of 30,000 houses), raising the average per-unit cost to all buyers by $250.

The buyer, of course, loses the interest he would have earned on the downpayment if it were kept in escrow under an arrangement that as-sured him of the interest it

Group bonding under the Qualified Builders Program can be accomplished at a cost to the builder of only $35 a house, said Mr. Wieboldt. It gives builders the use of the buyer's downpayment money (so the funds do not have to be borrowed from the lender), yet assures the buyer of re-payment if the builder fails.

The question then becomes ers' association has 900 members, of whom 500 are "func-tioning." Of these, 200 have joined and 50 are in the application phase, Mr. Wieboldt said. The association's members build 80 percent of the new houses in the state, he said. But they are probably only about 65 percent of the building organizations. All the voluntary program can do is di-rect buyers to those builders

The structural warranty side of the program protects against such damage as base-ment and roof leaks, improperly fitting windows, the sep-aration of wallboards from stude, and similar structural

Only builders with at least five years of experience can be admitted to the program. For those admitted, the cost is not expected to exceed $55 a house, said Mr. Margolis. In the city, the typical downpayment ranges from $7,000 to $12,000, and the houses — duplexes, semide-tached and fully detached-range in price from about $42,000 to $80,000.

There is an appeals process under both the state and national programs. In the state, the Excelsior Insurance Company of Syracuse is the in-

The state's highest tribunal let stand Mr. Mitcbell's disbarment, making him ineligi-ble to practice law in New York. It followed his cooviction on Federal charges of perjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Watergate scandal.

In a unanimous ruling, the seven judges of the Court of Appeals upheld the Appellate Division's earlier approval of his disbarment. And in an accompanying opinion, Judge Matthew Jason wrote:

"Mr. Mitchell has had his day in court, and has had every opportunity to refute the charges made against him. We are of the view that an attorney convicted of a felony has no constitutional right to practice law pending an eppeal of his conviction."

The house that Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of Califormia refuses to live in may go on the auction block. The State Senate has voted in favor of selling the $1.3 million Govarnor's Mansion, built toward the close of Ronald Reagan's last term of office on a site in Sacramento bought by supporters.
Still unfurnished, the mansion costs the taxpayers $85,000 a year to maintain. The 38-year-old Governor says the mansion is wasteful. The State Assembly will have to approve the bill before the mansion can be sold.

When Ben Foley, a resident of Marina Del Ray, Calif., and president of the Company Store, a national marketing company, gets angry, he stays angry, and his latest outburst has caused Gov. Michael S. Dukakis of Massachusetts to request the state police to investigate. It all started on May 6 with a $2.75 misunderstanding at a toll gate on the Massachusetts Turnpike as Mr. Foley's wife Fran, upon refusing to pay what she considered an unjust toll fee, was arrested and had to pay $5 in court costs and $50 bail. Mr. Foley has written 14,000 letters to his customers, urging them never to visit Massachusetts. "I'll never set foot in Massachusetts again," Mr. Foley said, "and my company will never spend another dime there."

ON "THE UNSUSPECTED ILLNESS" - HYPOTHYROIDISM

How it can subtly sap health - physical or mental, or both in a remarkable variety of ways ... and a simple test you . can use to help uncover it.

Of all the problems that can affect health, none, it now appears, may be more common, more easily corrected, yet more often untreated and unsuspected than hypothyroidism, or low thyroid gland functioning.

It's hardly a new story that severe thyroid deficie can have its obvious and devastating effects. But evidence has been mustered now that hypothyroidism in mild or moderate form can be responsible for any or many of an astonishingly large number of diverse problems, ranging from low energy and excessive fatigue to repetitive infections and chronic headaches, and from circulatory disturbances and stubborn skin disorders to difficulties with memory and concentration, and even mental depression, to name just a few.

Moreover, thyroid deficiency—with startlingly high incidence, affecting, according to one estimate, 40% ni the population to some degree—may have much to do with blood cholesterol elevation, atherosclerotic disease of the arteries, and heart attacks.

Yet it commonly escapes diagnosis—for one reason, because of the failure of many physicians as well as lay people to recognize that low thyroid function can have effects that vary considerably from one victim to another; and, for another reason, because commonly used tests are not always reliable.

It's almost impossible to exaggerate the importance of the thyroid, a small butterfly-shaped gland in the

: It is the thyroid which controls metabolism-the process by which nutrients are transformed into energy and many essential chemical reactions in the body are

Minute secretions of the gland-less than a spoon ful a year-are responsible for much of the body's heat production; they help maintain blood volume and the vital flow of the circulatory system; are essential for muscle health; and beighten the sensitivity of nerves. Every organ, tissue and cell in the body affected by the hormone secretions of the thyroid.

Both the cretin child and the myxedematous adult demonstrate the all-pervading influence of the thyroid.

To Biblical Times; Name Dates to 1781

By MURRAY SCHUMACH The history of what came to be known as blue laws dates back to the Bible and, at various times in this state, the edict egainst work on Sundays was called "an Act against profanation of the Lord'a Day, called Sunday," or "an act for suppressing immorality." The blue laws — they got their name from the fact that, in 1781, in New Haven, such laws were printed on blue paper—came to this country by way of an edict of Constantine, in A.D. 321, the Fnglish common law and took root in the Colonies in Virginia in 1614.

From the time the Dutch imposed mandatory rest on Sunday in 1656, the law went through many changes, until, in 1967, the statute in this state was removed from the Penal Law and re-enacted as part of the General Business

"There is little doubt," said "There is little doubt," said the Court of Appeals in strik-ing down part of the blue laws yesterday, "that these laws are clearly religious in nrigin, being derived from the concise directive of the Old Testament that on the seventh day "thou shalt not do any work."

Major Categories

The first state Sabbath law, in 1788, the one called "an act for suppressing immorality," prohibited four categories—travel, labor or work, sports and amusement, and business or occupation.

Although there were some changes during the early part of the 19th century, it was in 1881 that the ban on travel was eliminated and exceptions to the ban on servile labor were made to include trades, manufactures and mechanical employments.

"It is also interesting to note," the Court of Appeals said yesterday, "that with the 1831 revision tha number of exceptions to the mandate against public selling more than doubled."

The revision also permitted the sale of food eaten on the premises, and the sale of drugs, medicines and surgical

Excerpts From the

The following are excerpts from the New York Court of Appeals' decision striking down key provisions of the state's "blue laws":

We have before us once again the problem presented by what are commonly called the Sunday blue laws. And while the notion of a quiet Sunday is unquestionably valid in principle, we believe that two of the sections challenged here are constitutionally defective. We refer specifically to the sections dealing with the prohibition against public sales and the forfeiture provision of the statute. Due to the gallimantry of exceptions which has obliterated any natural nexus between [the section prohibiting Sunday sales] and the salutory purpose of the Sabbath Laws and the pervasive ambiguity [of the forfeituse provision] we declare both of these sections unconstitutional.

Our analysis of [the section forbidding Sunday sales) leads to the inescapable conclusion that it no longer pos-sesses the requisite rationality in light of its avowed purpose. When entering a particular field, the Legislature invariably incorporates its value indements into the definitions and categories of the statutory scheme. The performance of this task ne-cessarily involves the drawing of arbitrary lines.

Therefore when the Legis-lature decides to regulate the production of one commodity and not another it has made a choice which is arbitrary. That alone will not render the legislation defective since there may be arbitrary distinctions as part of a rational

Hustration of Concept

A general illustration of this concept is that in many countries vehicles must travel on the right side of the road. Although arbitrary, this is nevertheless compelling and therefore rational in that one side or the other be chosen. Thus, while arbitrariness in the sense of selection within a group of choices is inevitable, a modicum of ra-tionality is required for a sta-tute to be valid.

Of course, one must be wary that assertions of irrationality are not simply re-flections in the eye of the beholder. To provide a day of rest it is pecessary in modern society both to per-mit and to prohibit. In the selection of what should be what they're doing will kill mext weak. HIS is likely to be a very good year for Auton Chekhov. Irene Worth will do "The Cherry Orchard" for Joe Papp at Lincoln Center, while Jenne Moreau probably will do the same play at the uptown Circle in the Square Moreover, Engenic Leontovich will direct her own adaptation of "The Seaguil" somewhere Off Broadway in the fell. Miss Leontovich, who was in "The Seaguil" in Moscow in 1920, will not appear in this new production because there is no part in it for a woman of her age. Miss Leontovich jogs several times a week around the Central Park reservoir and swims every day at the Henry Hudson Health Chib, but she is, after all, 76. Equity will allow Miss Leontovich 12 weeks of workshop rehearsals for her "Seagull," which may well be a record gestation for an Off Broadway, or even Broadway, production. Miss Leomovich will cast the 13 roles for "Seagull" in July, start rehearsing in August, and open Emlyn Williams will return to New York in October with "Dylan Thomas, Growing Up," which is a production he has been appearing in every few years since he first did it in London in 1955. Mr. Williams has done virtually everything in theater, after first coming to fame in 1935, when he wrote and starred in "Night Must Fall," and he is now doing the book and lyrics for "Spring!", a musical based on one of his plays. However, "Dylan," which he periodically takes into theaters around the world, is one of his more lasting loves. He will do it this time for eight performances at Town Hall.

In "A Chorus Line" at the Shubert, life is imitating art, or art is imitating life, and it is something like a series of mirrors in an amusement park, where the images reflect one another until they disappear at the end of a hallway. At the Shubert, Joe Bennett, who is a director and choreographer, is playing Zach, who is supposed to be a director and choreographer, while Clive Clerk, who is the dance captain for "A Chorus Line," is playing Larry, who plays the role of the dance captain in the show.

Moreover, for lengthy segments of "A Chorus Line," Mr. Bennett and Mr. Clark sit in the back of the house, while Mr. Bennett talks through an amplifying system to the dancers on stage. This often confuses some members of the audience, who are not sure they like the character Zach, or, for that matter, Mr. Bennett, There are always two paying customers in the row where he sits, and frequently when he steps over the paying customers to get to his seat they offer up little expressions of pleasure. Then, after he has played Zach for a while and steps over them again to return to the stage, the customers. sometimes glower at him. They think that Zach is an unkind man. Therefore, they reason, Mr. Bennett must be

"Last Monday night—insane," Mr. Bennett was saying after he had just finished a matinee the other day. "There were people Jeaning over in back of me, literally breathing on my neck. This afternoon a woman reached over and patted me on the thigh and said, There, there, don't

Mr. Clerk said that sometimes the customers did not know who he was, either. As Larry, the dance captain, he sometimes leaves the stage and stands in the assle, watching the dancers. The customers do not always like

"I'll be standing there," he said, "and I'll h in back of me say, 'Oh, Myrtle, he's standing I can't see.' People have even written to the ager to complain about someone disrupting ance. They're complaining about me."

'Butterfly' Is Free at Stadium

By JOHN ROCKWELL

Anna Moffo in a baseball cap is apparently doing more for the Metropolitan Opera's image than a decade of park concerts could do. The opera. company's free concert performance of Puccim's "Madama Butterfly" with Miss Moffo in the title role at Yankee Stadium tomorrow night at 8:30 is not only a symbol of an institution with an aloof image reaching out to all the people. It's also become a genuine event.

Part of this phenomenon can be traced to intangible, psychological causes, A park is just a park, after all. But baseball is the all-American game, the symbol of enter-tainment for the common man. And Yankee Stadium, with or without its renovation, is the archetypal setting for baseball in New York.

"There's been so much talk about this," Miss Moffo said the other day. "I got into a cab, and the driver said, "Are you really singing at Yankee Stadium? I said yes, and he said, 'I'm going.'"

Tomorrow's performance is part of the Met's regular free parks performance series, and the cast—which besides Miss Moffo includes Enrico DiGiuseppe and Richard Fredricks conducted by Jan Behr—is singing the opera elsewhere in the city this summer. Even if the stadium is filled to its 54,028 capacithe crowd won't match the 100,000 people who show up on pleasant nights in Central Park for the Met and New York Philharmonic

But there are tangible reasons why tomorrow's performance — a straightforward concert version with no sets, costumes or full-scale acting —will be a first for both the Metropolitan and the Yankees. There were rock and jazz concerts at the old Yankee Stadium, but apart from Robert Merrill's renditions of

The Star-Spangled Banner, there has never been classical music or opera there. And the opera company, in turn, has never played in a major sports stadium before. There are also some unusual details. Although the performance is free, anybody who wishes to attend must have a ticket—which will be available at the gates on a first-come, first-served basis when they open at 6:30 P.M. The reason for this procedure, says Marty Appel, the Yankees' director of publici-ty, is crowd control, "We won't let more people in than capacity, and this way we know how many people

Not all the tickets will be free or unreserved. Elderly people will be admitted through a special gate (Gate 2) and reserved seats will be held for them on the lower levels, Groups of 25 or more may telephone 733-2100, the office of the Bronx Council on the Arts, and reserve blocs of seats that will be held until 7:30 P.M. (Some such groups have already made plans to sell their seats to aid such charitable causes as Italian earthquake relief.) And the Bronx Arts Council itself is holding a special reserved section of 1,000 seats to be sold at $10 each in an effort to recoup part of its expenses in arranging the event.

"Either before or after,
we're going to have Anna
Moffo driven around the stands in an open car, bull-fighter-fashion," says Fred Croton, executive director of the Bronx Arts Council. "She steps out of her Cadillac, steps on the stage and belts."

Nobody knows quite how many people to expect to-morrow. "This is something that will have to be developed," said Johanna Fiedler of the Met, cautiously.

There are a lot of Italians in the Bronx, I know that," said the optimistic Miss Moffo, who has earned Mr. Croton's affection with her goodnatured neighborhood troup-ing in behalf of the perfor-mance. "If it's good weather, I'm hoping to get at least 35,-000 in there," Mr. Croton adds. "If there's less, I'll be disappointed."

"It's always a thrill singing for hig crowds," adds Miss Moffo, who sang Mimi in the first Met Central Park con-cert a decade ago and who drew 80,000 there four years back for her Violetta. think what's greatest about these concerts is the obligation you feel toward people who don't normally go to the Met. We get a lot of people who can't afford to come to Lincoln Center and who come out with their six children and their picnic baskets. It's wonderful to bring them something they don't usually

"Butterfly" in the hallpark came about through the co operation of the opera com-pany, the Bronx Arts Coun-cil and Robert Abrams, the Bronx Borough President. The Met, involved in a widespread effort to reach deeper into the community, had been disturbed about the relatively low attendance in its summer appearances and 15,000-estimates vary) at Van Cortlandt Park in the northern Bronx.

"Van Cortlandt's pretty, but it's sort of out of the way for most people," Mr. Croton explained. "The Met invited the Bronx Council down to talk about it, and afterward, Sister Christine Marie [the president of the council, a dynamic, secularlydressed nun active in arts affairs] and I thought of Yan-

"It was sort of a will-o-the-wisp idea," Mr. Croton continued. "Bob Abrams mada it work politically, and then we've made it work in reality.

Ballet Spotlight on Males

By ANNA RISSELGOFF

ring down the curtain on the Age of the Ballerina, but this weekend is a fine opportu-nity to catch up with an important trend in balletthe strong upswing in male

Nowhere is this change more evident than at the New York City Ballet where the ballerina has always been revered. Yet recently, the company has developed an exciting group of young male soloists — dancers in their 20's such as Bart Cook, can all be seen at the State Theater in the ballets by George Balanchine, Jerome Robbins and Jacques d'Am-boise that will be given by the company tonight through

Sunday evening.

With the influx of these highly talented and Amer-ican-trained dancers — techican-trained dancers — ican-nically strong and stylistical-ly pure—the City Ballet is on the way to acquiring one of the strongest male con-tingents in ballet. This accent on male dancing has not been typical of the City Ballet For years of the City Ballet. For years the company's password was "ballet is a woman"—the dictum of Mr. Balanchine, the City Ballet's artistic director and chief choreographer.

Images of Obeisance

Occasionally, Mr. Balan-chine spelled this message out more literally with images of obeisance by the cavalier to his partner. In his "Ballet imperial" of 1941, the male lead went through an elaborate mime passage of "I love you" gestures to the bal-lerina. In the "Diamonds" section of the 1967 hit, "Rubies," the cavaller dropped to one knee and kissed the ballerina's hand, an image that was repeated in "Duo Concertant," a Balan-chine ballet for the 1972

Stravinsky Festival.

Since the festival however,
Mr. Balanchine has given increasing prominence and dancing opportunities to the new and more classicallytrained male dancers that have joined the company since 1970.

This change is more visible at the top, where such classical stylists as Helgi Tomasson and Peter Martins are among the company's relatively newer principal dancers. Even in a company that proclaims a no-star policy, principals such as Mr. Tomasson, Mr. Martins, Peter Schaufuss and Jean-Pierre Bonnefous always stand out.

The most significant de-velopment in the company's male dancing has taken place at the soloist and corps de ballet level Traditionally, this level has been weak in American companies:

As ballet has become more popular and as training has improved throughout the nation, the last decade has brought forth a more stream-lined male dancer than in the past.

There is one thing that dancers like Mr. Cook, Mr. Hoskinson, Mr. Bennett and Mr. Duell have in common.

They point their toes: New York City Ballet soloists (clockwise from top) Dai Richard Hoskinson, Tracy Bennett, Bart Cook can be seen this weekend at State

They point their toes. This may seem a minor aspect of their dancing to single out. Yet until their generation came along, it was some-thing one could never ex-pect American men in ballet to do. Usually, they had started studying ballet too late to make that arched foot a habit.

Greater Exposure

With the new crop of young male dancers at his disposal, Mr. Balanchine has heen giving them greater exposure. Mr. Cook, for instance, was given the leading male role in the new version of Mr. Balanchine's "Square Dance," which he will dance tomotrow evening and Sunday right day night.

It is rare for Mr. Balanchine to create the central solo in a ballet for a male dancer. He did so for Mr. Tomasson in "Le Baiser de la Fée". Last mooth, he composed a totally new solo in "Square Dance" for Mr. for Mr.

Cook. A dancer of verve, humor and correct style, Mr. Cook can also turn romantic, as seen in this solo and in his highly acclaimed per-formance of the "Melan-cholic" variation in "The Four Temperaments." That ballet will be given Sunday night. Mr. Cook will also dance tonight in "Tchaikov-say Suite No. 3" and as the lester in "La Sonnambula" tomorrow night and Sunday night.

Like Mr. Cook, Mr. Bennett was trained originally at the University of Utah's ballet school that was molded by William Christensen, a member of a samous American dancing dynasty. (His hrother, Lew, was the first American Apollo in 1935 h the Balanchina ballet of the same title.) Mr. Bennett, who detroed in more ballets then danced in more ballets than anyone else (10) during the Stravinsky Festival, com-bines his elegant classic line with a jazzy elasticity. He jester in 'La So tomorrow afternool "Four Tem Sunday evening.

Mr. Duell is 0 hopes With his high jump and vitalit brought new excita the roles he has be ping into. Tonight his debut in Jacob boise's original role As for Mr. Hos

By VINCENT CANBY

ARRY and Walter Go to New York" is a mov-York ie based on an original story and screenplay, but it's so implacably cute that you might suspect that it was based on a coloring book based on "The Sting." It's big and blank and so faux naif that you want to hit it over the head in the way that used to bring peo-ple to their senses in true farce, of which this is no ex-

The time is 1892, which you can roughly guess be-cause the men wear bowler hats and those stiff collars that become partially detached whenever someone is harried. The story is about, Harry (James Caan) and Walter (Elliott Gould), a couple of third-rate vaudevillians who become sidetracked as would-be safecrackers.

It's also about Adam Worth (Michael Caine), an elegant, internationally ap-plauded safecracker whom Harry and Walter have met during a brief stay in a Fed-eral pen, and Lissa Chestnut (Diane Keaton), the pretty, Inept Safecrackers passionately committed editor of an anarchist newspaper who decides, for reasons that are perfectly unclear, to rob the Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Lowell, Mass.

There are two funny moments in the entire film: Miss Keaton's stirring declar-ation that "If that bank has to be robbed, let it be robbed in the name of decency!" and a scene in which she attempts a genteel seduction of Caan's Charles Durning, who plays wink at the bank's president, a fur-

Miss Keaton, Mr. Caine and Mr. Durning are able farc-eurs, which means that they lower their sights so that their entire concentration appears to be on a space of approximately one enbig inch. This lunatic enveloping preoccupation with the trivial is one of the things that makes farce funny as well as liberating. It's like watching the combat in an ant pa-lace.

Neither Mr. Caan nor Mr. Gould plays it this way, and suspect that that was the intention of the director, Mark Rydell, as well as of the script writers, John By-rum and Robert Kaufman. If "Harry and Walter Go to New York" were to work at and I'm not sure it could Harry and Walter would have to be played straight, as believably bumbling innocents, not as a couple of leading men impersonating ineptitude and incompetence Mr. Gould can be a good comedian, but here he seems to have caught some of Mr.

'Musical Holdouts:' Hidden Talent

With one small harmonica tucked into his old hand, Sonny Terry is a swarm of musical bumblebees, three dozen hopping whistling teakettles and a whole blue-grass convention of fiddlers. He plays and he wboops and he clicks and he ticks with the mythmic precision of a kettle-drum and the tear-away shriek of a steam cal-lione liope. Whether or not be is the world's greatest harmonica player, there is surely no-body like him. A six-minute film, "Shonth' the Blues," an which he talks a bit with ingratiating fraudulence, and plays one number with total veracity, is the single com-plete success of the Film Forum's new program, "Musical Holdouts."

The program is made up of three documentaries, which, as the title implies, record performances and performers of a kind that mostly remain outside of commercial promotion."

The centerpiece is "Musical Holdouts" itself — giving the whole program its name—by David Cohen. It moves around the country finding its hidden music. "Holdouts" films black children on a South Carolina island, playing singing games that are more self-conscious and less remarkable than it would have us believe. It moves on to some old demon hanjo player on a Kentucky hills porch; and then to a successful blue-grass singer, who looks and lives like a small businessman. It is an incongruity only to our times and to Mr. Cohen—Bach wore a respectable wig.

The film ends with Comanche Indians chapting, and scenes of street-singers. As a whole it is interesting, but bland. It tries for pungencya commentary on authenticity versus inauthenticity - but the author's method is indirection and he hasn't the force and aim for it. The music itself mostly lacks attack or conclusive "Maybe Next Week Sometime" by David Boatwright is the weakest of the three. It wanders through South Caro-lina, ranging from rock to gospel singing. Some of it works, but it is marred by prefentious inconclusiveness and still more by pretentious camera work.

The Film Forum has had much stronger programs. But six minutes of Somy Terry lifts this one way above itself. RICHARD EDER .

T IS like floating into a shoal of berserk mirmows. It is like listening to eight different conversations at a cocktail party. It is Shelley Winters sitting in a midtowa restaurant and wearing a tablecloth because the air-conditioning bothers her.

She is dispatching cabooses of thought, shunting-en-gines of thought, and sometimes entire trains of thought through a vast conversational switching-yard. She set out to talk about the Cannes Film Festival but stopped for a

She paused briefly at Cannes, where two pictures she's in—"Last Stop Greenwich Village" and "The Tenant" were shown. She is not pleased with the restival. Too many people, too little art; and men she describes as "soldiers kept her out of the "Tenant" screening because she was five minutes late.

"The Tenant," which opens here soon, is by Roman Polanski. Miss Winters plays a concierge, She toucked upon French concierges: "Their whole life is spent in this tiny hole. They hate people. They love animals and keep a cat, a dog or a dogfish." She acquired a goldfish in Paris in order to feel out the part, but it died.

She respects Mr. Polanski but finds him-what is the word?-overwhelming. "I felt like a marionette," she said:

Miss Winters has been in-dozens and dozens of pictures. Right now she has finished or is in various stages of making a half dozen, including one with Monica Vitti, one with Henry Fonda, and one in which she dances with a dragon. She is stoic and hopeful and when she sums herself up she tells you how long she's been around and how much she weighs.

"With luck and health you get along, right?" she said. "I am not going to fight for youth. My dream is to weigh 140 pounds—around 20 to go, I have had a long career in the movies. I started in 1944 when I was 11.

"Once I did," she said. "I pulled down my dress to the waist. But they had to cut it. Everything that showed, up to my face, had turned red."

If there is a spectrum of actors, Tamara Dobson is ultraviolet to Miss Winters's red. She is tell, thin, beautiful and, professionally speaking, hungry. She was a successful black model; then she had a brief stardom as the karatechopping Cleopatra Jones in two Warner Brothers pictures, and that, for a while, was that.

"For two years I was in the hands of fate and Warners," said the other day, her big model's portfolio braced against her chair. Modeling still makes money for her but her hopes are pinned to a new picture, "Norman Is That You?" in which she has a comedy role as a hooker.

Modeling is silent work. Models keep trying to move beyond it into words; acting, writing or just plain conversational self-analysis. Miss Dobson studies acting with Paul Mann, she is writing a book, and she talks a mile a minute as if speech itself were a new language. On growing up poor in Baltimore:

"It's not a tragic story—it's a growing-up story. I had to work for everything, struggle for everything I got." On growing up after Baltimore:

Astoria Offers More Than a Little Bit of Greece in Music and Dance F

By MURRAY SCHUMACH

For those who can't take a vacation in Greece this simmer - or who want a warmup for such a trip - a oneday substitute will be staged in Astoria, Queens, said to be the largest Greek community outside of Athens.

From 11 A.M. tomorrow until 2 A.M. Sunday, Greek music, food, dancing — even kite-making — will be on the agenda for the Queens Out-door Greek Festival at Bohemian Hall at 29-19 24th Avenue in Astoria. The event sponsored by the Queens Council of the Arts and the Balkan Arts Center, will bring to the building and its tree-shaded garden a party with four hours of uninter-rupted music and dencing as

"That's one way of getting the people tired enough so that they leave at 2 in the morning," says Martin Roenig, who, with Ethel Raim, is co-director of the Balkan. Arts Center. Scent and Sound

While the music of the ly-ra, laouta, tsambouna, defi and bouzouki are played, the aromas of mousaka, dol-mades, souviaki and baklava will filter across the garden.

The program for the day includes three workshops on dancing, music and kite-making; a concert of traditional Greek music and songs, and an all-out dance party with Greek music. Each of the workshops cost $2.50. The party and concert combined cost $4.50. But for $10 you can get it all. And since the Greeks are believers in having fun family-style, children under 10 will be admitted free for the closing party.

. The program will begin at 11 A.M. with registration followed by dance music on rec-ords. It is not likely that many will be dencing during this period, but they can if wish, on the garden "dance floor."

From noon to 1:30 P.M. a Greek music workshop will be beld, at which John Roussos and John Pappas will play an assortment of Greek in-- struments.

Power, space, time and a visitor

Then, from 2 P.M. to 3:30 P.M. Yanni Posnakoff will show visitors how to make the traditional hectagonal Greek kites with whiskers as well as tail. People may keep the kites they make. At the third workshop, Mr. Pappas, and his wife, Paula, will demonstrate Greek dances. Traditional Music

For two hours beginning at 8 P.M., there will be a concert of traditional Greek music, with songs and dances. The culinary part of the program will begin at 6 P.M., when the Greek delicacies are served in the garden. All food will be made by residents of the community. On the basis of previous Greek festivals in the area—this is the ninththe quality will be high and the prices low.

Astoria is accessible by subway and bus as well as by car. The RR train of the BMT, which connects at Times Square, will take the visitor to the 25th Avenue-Astoria-Hoyt Avenue station. The No. 19 bus goes to 24th Avenue and the 102 bus to 29th Street. This festival has a very special advantage. Astoria bas become a center for a number of Greek nightclubs. Mr. Koenig said that further information can be obtained at 728-9327. The program goes on, rain or shine. If it rains, the portions scheduled in the garden will be beld inside the hall.

tasteful and talented performer, but his taste is defined by his unwillingness to wallow in bathos.

The other day a lumpy envelope from the Norton Company in Worcester, Mass., arrived announcing that its California subsidiary, Sigma Engineering Operations, had perfected its SONIC II Noise Filters, sample enclosed. Inside was a little plastic pouch, and inside the pouch were side was a little plastic pouch, and inside the pouch were two earplugs (sorry, "noise filters"). They were rubbery on the outside, they had three flanges on the shaft and an ominous-looking metal filter at the core. They hart when put in and tended to fall out at the slightest provocation.
According to the company, the virtues of the SONIC
II were that it cuts volume without altering "tone perception." "High level . . . noise is attenuated through a complex acoustical passageway that has mobile surfaces, which respond to sounds of different amplitudes and sharpness characteristics. At the same time, normal sounds, rhythms and tones are allowed to pass through, keeping the wearer in time' with the music."

That sounds "hep" enough, but this observer lacks the scientific knowhow to judge the feasibility of all of this; wet, wadded-up one-inch squares of chesp old paper napkins have always worked just fine for him.

But the receipt of the noise filters sets one to wondermg once again why pop music has to be so loud. Nearly everyone who regularly submits himself to rock music in a professional capacity either wears some sort of earplug, boasts blithely about high-frequency hearing loss or is simply too stoned or too silly to care. (Bear in mind that we're talking about continual exposure, of the sort experienced by musicians, road crews and critics. Occasional concertgoers probably needn't worry.)

Audience members, when questioned on this subject, speak of liking to feel the music vibrate through the structure of the hall, and of thresholds of aural pain beyond which they don't care anymore. But can't one simply say that all of that is self-destructive nonsense, and admit that the music business is caught up in a set of absurd assumptions about sound that more than anything else keeps pop music concerts a youth ghetto?

New Musical Express, the London music magazine, speculated recently that the British members of Fleetwood Mac, now based in California, would split from the American members of the band, return to Britain and re-form with Peter Green and other original Fleetwoodians. This its current configuration is enjoying a large success with its latest album and single, and deservedly.

Fans of the current Fleetwood Mac lineup can relax.

When questioned about the report, the band issued a flat

We arrived at the Labelle concert in Central Park Wednesday in time to encounter Ron Delsener, the promoter stalking away from the Shaefer Festival site, muttering that be'd "totally lost control" and that "there must be 50,000 kids in there." Once inside, the figure seemed a bit exaggerated, but teenagers were still scrambling over the fence and dropping into Wollman Rink in a steady stream. There is supposed to be a 6,000 capacity, but there must have been 8,000 there at least, with a few thousand on the surrounding hillsides, listening for free.

Mr. Delsener later returned to the concert, however, and was then taken to a surprise 40th birthday party hosted by his wife at the new U. S. Steakhouse Co. restanrant, which had been commandeered for the occasion. He seemed genuinely surprised when he walked in and was confronted by assorted well-wishers. Not many performers made it, but the place was awash in record company executives, managers and other music-biz types,

People who don't like rock music are forever arguing that rock fans are attracted to their heroes for nonmusical reasons. For the best bands, that's simply wrong: for all of Mick Jagger's rubber lips and androgynous sex appeal, it's his sloging and the musical bite of the band that have kept the Rolling Stones on top.

But nonmusical elements do play their part. In Los Angeles, for instance, there's a quintet of 16-year-old and Angeles, for instance, there's a quinter of 16-year-old and 17-year-old girls called the Runaways. This is the latest Southern California band to exploit, quite openly, the sex appeal of nubile post-pubescence, and long before hardly anybody had actually beard the group the band had received considerable publicity in the national press. Especially photos. And why not?—they look terrific. They are the 70's-punk equivalent of what the GTO's (remember them?) were for late-60's psychedelica.

Now their first record has appeared on Mercury. It's okay-better than the GTO's, for sure. This is functional female punk rock, not up to Suzi Quatro (whatever hap-pened to her?), but pleasant enough. The real test for the Runaways will come when they make their forthcoming national tour. With a group like this, looks and onstage personality really are crucial.

Wilko Johnson, guitarist and sangwriter for Dr. Feel-good, broke off a fruitless attempt at between-songs tuning a while back at the Bottom Line with the observation: "That's near enough for rock-and-roll."

Ron Delsener, who is producing the outdoor concerts in association with the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Compa ny, says the format will be the same as in past years. Prices for orchestra locations have been increased from $2.50 to $3. Balcony prices remain $1.50. "The raise in price," the producer said, "directly reflects the increase in the rental fee for the Wollman." Tickets can be purchased in Central Park and at Kor-vettes stores in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, Staten Island and Nassau, as well as at three Korvettes stores in New Jersey — Paramus, Wayne and West Orange.

Moreover, performances will begin an hour earlier than before, Mr. Delsener said, "to get the kids out of the park hefore it gets too late."

Tomorrow night, Jesse Co-lin Young will head the pro-gram. Well known to rock and folk-rock audiences for his work with the 1960's American rock band "The Youngbloods," Mr. Young now sings and plays his own soft-rock material, accompanying himself on guitar. He will share the bill with the folk-duo "Aztec Two-Step"comprising Rex Fowler of Maine and Neal Shulman of New York. Their music has been described as "an acoustic collage of folk, rock, country and jazz,

The summer series this year includes 51-low priced concerts featuring more than 100 jazz, pop, rock and folk artists. Concerts are held on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

On various weekends this summer, the festival will present such performers as Kenny Rankin and Tom Rush, folk singers (Friday, June 25); Patti Smith, the rock singer (Friday, July 9); the Earl Scruggs Revue, blue-grass-rock (Saturday, July 17), and Judy Collins, the folksinger (Friday, July 23). The last two performances of the season will feature the folk-rock team of Crosby and Nash (Friday, Sept. 10 and Saturday, Sept. 11).

'Yes'-Rock Is in the Affirmativ

The first albums by Yes, the five-man English rock group that performed at Nassan Coliseum on Wednes-day, were widely hailed as masterpieces of art rock, but then the group's music grew more pretentions and gim-mick-laden. At the same time, a flock of English groups that came along in the wake of Yes's initial success drove the art-rock idiom into the ground with plodding, overarranged musical excesses and lyrics full of pseudo-pro-

This reviewer had written off the entire art-rock pheoff the entire art-rock phenomenon as one more example of the deadly effect of artistic pretensions on rock-and-roll, but he was pleasantly surprised by the latest Yes show. There were still banal light classical quotes sandwiched in with the original music, but not many. The artour's lyrics were as starrygroup's lyrics were as starry-eyed as ever, but one didn't have to pay much attention

Yes's instrumental playing was the focus of the show, and it was fine rock playing. Alan White, the drummer, Asin White, the drummer, and Chris Squire, the bassist, pushed even the most overblown arrangements along at a sprightly clip, and when Steve Towe, the guitarist, and Patrick Moraz, the key-based players lad the groups. board player, led the group into improvisational passages the music picked up and flew. Jon Anderson's lead vocals were sometimes thin, but his rhythm guitar and percussion playing added to the band's infectious drive.

The New Steel Pier Opens

By FRED FERRETTI

Hurry, hurry, hurry! Step right up! Starting tomotrow, the place that once gave you the world's longest ginger-bread pier jutting a half-mile into the Atlantic Ocean, the one and only Victoria music hall built entirely over water and the world's first and most accomplished diving horse, is about to do it all

Atlantic City's Steel Pier, which used to be mentioned in the same breath with Mo-nopoly and Miss America as fitting symbols of this oncethriving resort city, has had a $2.5 million facelift, and its new owners and the city are looking to it with optimism for an economic lift. The doors will open at 11 A.M. and the owners are prepared for 500,000 visitors during the summer season.

Tomorrow the Steel Pier, which was built in 1898 and was once the embodiment of Atlantic City's curious turn-of-the century mixture of carnival honky-tonk and proper Victorianism, will recproper Victorianism, will reo-pen with its decaying Board-walk replaced with concrete and carpeting, with Flipper and two friends up from the Florida Keys for the summer, with its diving bell repainted and ready to drop visitors down for a look at the fish, and with Enzo Stuarti and Melba Moore singing at 8 in the Music Hall.

One Stop, One Price

"What we've done is create "What we've done is create a theme park" says Lawrence Alper, managing member of the seven-man partnership that owns the Steel Pier. "We've made a one-stop one-price ($4) center for diver-sion and amusement. Combined with the Boardwalk we have everything you could ask for for the family." Mr. Alper, who also is one ia Avenua — walked visitors ia Avenua — walked visitors through the new amusement complex the other day, pointing out some of the changes that have been made. The old Music Hall theater and Midway theatar had been torn down and replaced with a series of rides for adults and children—all of them brought in by German, French and Italian companies on what he calls a "showcase basis."

Included are a roller coast-er, several "thrill rides," a series of tamer rides for children and a few "dark" rides—so-called because they are designed to frighten ri-ders with pop-up skeletons, hobgoblins and witches—and a two-story-high carousel that will sit in the new "in-ternational Rides" building, a domed structure created by tearing away two stories of an old dark funhouse.

Where the old theaters had where the old meaters had been there are now a series of "fun ways," which are the new words for shooting gal-leries, games of chance, wheels of fortune and ring tossers. These, too, hava a new look instead of stuffed taddy beers and felt snakes. teddy bears and felt snakes, players can win potted phi-lodendrons, ivy plants, ferns and baby rubber plants. "Wa go with the environment," Mr. Alper says. Other booths offer 10-speed bicycles to big winners, as well as citizens band and portable radios.

This is not to say that there will be a leck of Atlantic City souvenirs, salt water taffy, hats, pillows, ashtrays and scarves. These will be on sale in the souvenir stands.

The new owners have also brought in the world's largest model-train set, which was part of the Lionel trains exhibit at the 1939 New York world's Fair, and a flock of penguins from the Antarctic, alligators from Florida and tropical fish from all over the world to create an Oceana-rium, down the pier from the diving bell.

Right in the middle of all this is a porpoise show, but eccording to Mandy Rodriguez, training director at the Flipper School in Grassy Key, Fla., "It is not a series of tricks, with the porpoises leaving and us giving them leaping and us giving them fish. It isn't a circus."

Instead, the Steel Pier will operate a "school" for two younger porpoises, Captain Gray and Delphi, who will be learning to perform as the

This year there will be no opera production, but one of the church parables, "Curlew River," will be repeated July 9 at 9 o'clock.

"Fables," subtitled "A Diversion for four eingers and nine instruments," which will be given its New York-area premiere next Friday at 8:30 in the courtyard and repeated on June 27 at 5:30. Lehar's "The Merry Widow" will be sung in concert form io the Venetian Theater oo July 17 and 23 at 8:30.

Lyndhurst Castle, Gothic estate overlooking the Hudson River at Tarrytown, N.Y., will provide the backdrop tomorrow night for a festival of experimental films, video art and some live performance pieces, as well as a setting for picnickers. The festival called the First Annual Celebration of Cinema and Art, gets under way at 6 P.M., when the gates of Lyndhurst open to the public. A cross-section of film artists—both established and new-from video and general film-making will be brought together.

Two simultaneous activities will open the evening the works of eight video-makers, including Nam June Paik, will be shown on television screens set up under a tent; out on the lawn, light artists Dermot Harvey and Patrick Firpo will con-duct what they call a "proc-ess workshop," showing the preparations for their light show, which will be projected later in the evening on heli-

When it begins to get dark, at about 8 P.M., Vince O'-Leary, a conceptual artist and photographer, will start his outdoor, multi-media performance piece—a sometimes structured and often spontaneous theatrical happening that calls for audience par-

Harvey and Mr. Firpo will launch their belium balloons for the start of their "Theater of Light" show, accompanied by an electronically synthesized sound track. The last event, the screening of films by eight experimental filmmakers begins at about 10:30 P.M. Meanwhile, the video art will be shown under the tent throughout the chides Ed Emshwiller, whom Mrs. Schneider calls "the grandfather of experimental filmmakers." Mr. Emshwiller will show his 40-minute "Choice Chance Woman Dance," which attempts to explore the paradoxes and dilemmas confronting confilms on the program will be Milena Jelinek's "Convention," Mark Sadan's "Musik Express," and the premiere of Rosalind Schneider's "The Butterfly," described as a poetic encounter between a child and a butterfly. The festival also inclodes films by Charles Levine, Toby Carey, Tom DeWitt and Maria Lass-

The video program, an as-semblage of visual experi-ments with videotape, will feature the work of Shedul Gorewitz, who tapes ensem-bles of actors and dancers in spontaneous performance sitnations. Other video artists on the program are Doris

Tim Hardin Sings

Tim Hardin, the singer and songwriter who recently returned from self-imposed exile in London and is performing at the Other End through this weekend, was one of the most talented writers to emerge from the Greenwich Village folk-music gestalt of the 60's. A nation that in its heart still thought of Louis XV as the all-time apogee of interior decorative styles could not accept functional severities without pretty-ing them up, any more than a French chef can stand to let a dish leave the kitchen without e sauce, and Art Deco, which pretends to respect geometric disciplines, is really the bastard offspring of an illicit union between Art Nouveau (see Maxwell's Plum) and Cubism preciosities and a historical distillation of its virtues pre-

The style's current face-lifting follows the usual period of rejection that besets any high fashion with the passing of its first youth. At the Grand Cafe the face-lifting is a double job, since the new restaurant occupies the former quarters of Passy, until its recent demise e matronly relic of first-generation Art Deco. You would hardly know the old lady now. Brass and crystal chandeliers from one of those old movie palaces, mostly now demolished, which were America's best examples of Art Deco, hang glittering from ceilings painted the same bright pink as the walls. You are enveloped by pink, which is O.K. for an evening.

Along with mural paintings by Bill Riggs of impossible females in absurd costumes in the manner of Erté, the con-summate Art Deco stylist, there are etched glass panels in the same manner executed by the brothers Izzie, Charley and Sam Shefts of Brooklyn, who must be the world's best technicians in the medium. The bronze table lamps, some 30 of them, are original Art Deco hat display stands, electrified and capped with another find, appropriate Art Deco shades. Look around for the old Passy and you may recognize the original sconces, freshened up, and the scalloped molding around the room at ceiling level. Right on down to the table settings, the style is consistently observed. The team operating the restaurant, Madelaine and Ray Senter, are obviously knowledgeable Art Deco buffs.

Food? Not sawdust by any means. The imperative first choice among appetizers is "chef's coulibiac of salmon en crofte" ($3.50), which also has stuffings of spinach and mushrooms. Bang-up, and we suggest you and your dinner companion divide an order with your choice of any other appetizer (we enjoyed smoked turkey with fruit, at $3), avoiding only the shrimp remoulade with melon. It sounds great and looks great, and the melon was great when we tried it, but the shrimp was no better than what you get in nine out of 10 of even the best New York restaurantstender but tasteless. What happens?

Each of the seven entrees comes in two styles-American, which means honest, simple and straightforward, or French, which means fancy. We tried the chicken, at $6.50, in each of its guises-plain grilled, which was excellent,

Start with the pate maison or the house crepe which is filled with scallops, shriup, and mushrooms. Now, as in this been since the restaurant opened, the roast leg of lamb is spectacularly good. Also noteworthy are the veal kidneys either broiled, or bordelaise. As the restaurant's name implies, there are a number of broiler offerings as well. Hamptons: A Taste of Variety the food is dependable. Rec-ommended: veal piccata, herb-flecked scampi, napole-By FLORENCE FABRICANT

Weekend dining in the Hamptons covers an ever-widening range of possibili-ties. Tables are set invitingly in the rambling old inns and houses, shiny new storefronts and weathered dockside buildings of the tidy villages that stretch from the eastern end of Moriches Bay to Montauk Point. Clam bars, fastfood chains and discothèques line the highway that links

For some summer people, dining out in the Hamptons means a long dress or slacks and a blazer and a personal greeting from the owner at the door, there are restau-rants in Southampton that echo Palm Beach. Other discriminating diners head for de-pendable little roadside spots where the seafood is fresh and inexpensive.

For the singles, Martell's in Amagansett and Magic's Pub in Westhampton are magnets where the food is merely fuel for mingling. Celebrity grouples make a heeline for any place that's mentioned in print. A tourist mecca like Gosman's in Mon-tsuk attracts thousands every weekend, despite a long trip and another long wait for a table. Choices for Fine Food

The following survey represents a cross section of eating places in the Hamp-tons: those serving good to excellent food and those that are very popular—often both. Our choices for fine dining are Squires in East Hampton and A Moveable Feast in Westhampton. The Lobster Inn is the best bet for lobsters. The Lobster Roll in Napeague or the Fish Nat in Hampton Bays for a fresh seafood lunch. After dinner, Bobby Van's in Bridgehampton offers the right mix of Hamptons in-formality and cachet.

· To say a menn features fish, seafood and duck describes virtually every restaurant on the east end of Long Island. When in doubt, order the bluefish or the sea trout (weakfish) and tell the waiter you are allergic to paprika. In many kitchens where the chef has barely mastered besic fish cookery, paprika is the substitute for proper broiling. If you select duck in an unfamiliar restaurant, request the sauce on the side. Many decently crisped portions of Long Island duckling have been destroyed by the thick, cloying substances poured over

Be aware that Peconic Bay scallops are out of season in the summertime; the ones on hand have all been frozen. On the other hand there are no restrictions on Gardiner's Bay oysters. They are as fresh as a surf-driven breeze. If steamers are your passion, phone ahead—these plump briny delicacies have been in very short supply.

No matter where you go, make a reservation if possible. Weekend dining on the east end on the spur of the moment means winding up at Carvel. At some of the more celebrated spots. more celebrated spots, calling several days or a week in advance would be wise. Except for A Moveable Feast and Squires, where there are only two sittings, you may not find kitchens and staff at their best on crowded Saturday nights.

Most restaurants have a la carte menus, which makes sense since most appetizers are consumed on weekends standing up on someone's lawn with 100 of your most intimate friends.

A dinner check can run anywhere from $10 per person for good, honest seafood to $25 or higher for a more luxurious meal. Prices, especially those quoted for lobsters, are subject to change. Reservations and credit cards are accepted when indicated.

This restaurant offers the most elegant dining experience in the Hamptons. French dishes are creatively interpreted by Patricia Lenz and served on flowered porcelain in the charming dining rooms. Don't miss the splendid terrine de canard, savory escargots en pots aux crou-tons, saddle of lamh or dulcet mocha tarte. Crusty homemade rolls and rich Colombian coffee enhance the delight.

highway restaurant with its statues of dueling cavaliers and a crenelated pink stucco castle at the entrance. These, and the other sculptures that dot the grounds, were the work of the original owner in the late 1800's. The restaurant itself has been popular for over 40 years, and weekend after weekend it is still filled to capacity. The specialties tre Italian and

On Saturday and Sunday evenings dinner is buffet: cold poached fish, seafood and vegetable salads, ham with mustard mousse turkey relishes and various hot entrees including excellent roast sirioin of beef, seafood Newburg lasagne and stuffed cabbage. Mousses and pastries are homemade.

Bowden Square swden Square, Southampton. (516) 283-2800. Lunch 12 to 4, dinner from 4; Sundays dinner only, from noon. Lunch entrees Lunch $1.75 to $9.75, dinner $6.50 to $10.75, including soup. Full Decrees.

The Rolls-Royces and Cadillacs are still being valet-parked and Herb Mc-Carthy is at the door in his white jacket, greeting guests, many hy name. Steaks, roast beef and seafood are indifferent, but the menu also includes some Irish special-ties, and the soda bread is rich and light. A combo plays old favorites for dancing on weekend evenings.

American Hotel Main Street, Sag Harbor. (516) 725-3535. Lunch from 12 to 3 (4 on Sundays), dinner 5:30 to 10:30. A la carte lunch entrees $3.75 to $5.75, dinner entrees $6.50 to $9.50. No credit cards.

This landmark on Sag Harbor's Main Street has been carefully retained. The dining rooms and bar are pleasant settings for lunch, cocktails or dinner. Cocktails are also served in the cozy lobby or at tables set up on the flag-draped porch. Like many of Long Island's restored inns, the American Hotel has a French kitchen. The trend may have begun with Henri Soulé at the Hedges in East Hampton. The chef here is no Soule, but his cooking has merit. Recommended: subtly herbed terrine de maison, delicate flounder ambassadeur, bittersweet reine de saba, raspberry mousse studded with morsels of rasp-lain Street, Bridgehampton. (516) 537-0590. From noon on. No reservations. A la carte lunch entrees $1.35 to $3.95, Full bar. No credit cards. There are dozens of reasons for stopping at this turn-of-the-century pub, but the very last must be the food. A hamburger for lunch on the porch is eating at its best at Bobby Van's. There is a steak, poultry and seafood menu, but it's better to come after dinner when you can stick to drinks, Irish coffee and maybe a dish of local strawberry ice cream while you enjoy the music and the happy, noisy atmosphere and maybe spot a famous literary face or two. It's clubby but you'll feel welcome.

Georgette's Gann Road at Three Mile Harbor, East Hampton. (516) 324-9778. From 6 P.M. A is carte entress $4.50 to $8.50. No bar yet; bring your own wine. No credit cards.

It is a joy to find a res-taurant with so many appealing dishes that taste as good as they look Butter-bless steamer clams on the halfshell, tangy grilled mussels, bass en croûte with piquant sorrel sauce and perfect duckling moistened with brandied grapes are a few of the enticements. Many East Hampton residents wouldn't dream of dining anywhere else but this large venerable restaurant with its several dining rooms and large outdoor patio. They are warmly greeted and carefully served by a staff that knows their particular tastes and caters to them. Originally just a fish market, Chuhby's has expanded to the restaurant next door and is popular with singles, families and natty West-hamptonites in navy blazers and white slacks. The fish market connection provides a very wide variety of fish and seafood for this small. casual place and the chef has mastered basic fish cooking. The selections are reasonably priced. A one-pound lobster is $5,95.

John Duck Jr. Prospect Street, Southamoton. (516): 283-0311. From noon. Reservations only for large parties. A la carte, tunch $3.25 to $6.25, dinner $6.75 to $9.25.

Full bar. Large and dependable, John Duck Jr. has none of the Hampton hype. John and Roger. Westerhoff are the third-generation owners, and their menu lists steaks, seafood, duck and German speroot, cock and craman specialties. The results are mostly good if unexciting, except for the fine home-made cocktail sauce, Craig Claiborne's particular favorite. It's a good place to bring the kids.

The Lobster Inn 233-9828. The Sea Spray, Ocean Road, East Hampton. (516) 324-6044. Froom noon No reservations. A la carte entrees from $4.95. Full bar.

Both Inns are breezy and beachy without trying too hard. Rustic wood planking, hatchover tables and a water view are all it takes. The Southampton location is more crowded and becomes very hectic on Sundays as weekenders heading home find it a convenient stop. There is a "summer of '42" feeling about the East Hampton Inn. Lobsters in various sizes and combinations up to meaty 4-pounders are $6.95 to $22.50. There are assorted fish and seafood dishes listed on the chalkboard.

Gosman's

West Lake Drive, Montsuk. (516) 668-5330. Noon to 10. Reserva-tions for large parties only. A la carte entrees $3.95 to $13.95. Full bar. If statistics showed that more visitors to Montauk headed for Gosman's than the lighthouse, it would come as no surprise. Gosman's vast dockside dining porch and large dining room hold 500 at a clip. Almost as many diners seem to be packed into the bar area or ined up behind a rope quiet-ing restless children while they wait for tables. The fish and seafood are usually sat-isfactory. Lobsters come in 11/4-pound ($8.95) and 2-pound ($13.95) sizes, nothing larger. There is also a rustic clam bar at Gosman's Fish Market on the dock, where you can eat clams and such or have a bowl of chowder, steamers, lobster and corn, all for $7.95.

Informal Lunch

The Royale Fish Amagansett Square, Amagansett. (516) 267-3459. Breakfast 10 to 12, lunch 12 to 5, dinner from 5 P.M. A la carte lunch entrees $1.75 to $6.50, dinner entrees $5.50 to $10.50. Full har.

This restaurant slips with perfect ease from breakfast to lunch to dinner. The dinner menu features fish and seafood. Their savory poached bass with capers is one of the finest fish dishes we have had anywhere. Lunch offers a varied array of sandwiches and light entrees, including a first-rate lobster salad roil on homebaked bread. The french fries are freshly made from unpeeled potatoes. The Royale Fish is in a rather bare barnlike building with and becoming a very fine restaurant. This year it an outdoor patio. The crowd tends to be informal and attractive. The service can be inefficient.

Montauk Yacht Club and Inn

Star Island, Montauk. (516) 668-3100. Breakfast 8 to 11, lunch 12 to 3, dinner 6:30 to 11:30. Club Terrace à la carte dinner entrees $7.50 to $12.50. Cafe Potpourri entrees $2.75 to $10.50. Fuil bar, good wine list. This is the most lavish resort complex in the Hamptons. Glowing, polished woods alternate with textured stone surfaces. The Club Terrace dining room boasts a free-form stained glass ceiling panel, lush leather banquettes, tasteful appointment and a water view. There is an interesting selection of steaks, roasts and seafood. The food is opulent and well-prepared, the chef does a particularly good job with poached fish.

The service lacks professional expertise, however. A somewhat overamplified trio plays for listening and dancing. Fancy dress would be appropriate but is not required. The Cafe Potpourri is terracotta and wroughtiron oasis open 24 hours a day for extravagant sand-wiches, salads, light entrees, ice creams and coffees.

Gerie's Montauk Highway, Westhampton (516) 283-2242. From 11 AM. to 11 P.M. No reservations. Sandwiches $1.75 to $3.75; entrees to $4.85. Beer. No credit cards.

In the days before the Long Island Expressway and the Sunrise Extension, Gene's was a natural stop-off on the way home from any Hampton. Now it's a little out of the way, but the fast service and good sandwiches and clams might make the 10-minute detour worthwhile. Meal-sized hero sandwiches named for famous people, places and things, starting with the Fly-ing Saucer, are layered with multiplex cold cuts and vegetables. Order some to go and save them for the Glen Cove traffic jam or eat them in Gene's covered outdoor dining area.

It is known by its nickname, "Lunch," the sign on the roof. It is also known as terrific for fish and seafood served in casual surroundings. A hand-lettered sign tacked up on the door advises, Please wait on line until your number is called." An extraordinary and deserved popularity has not altered this tiny roadside establish-ment over the decades. Fresh seafood and sandwiches, including mussels (marinated or steamed), clams and local fish are the attractions. Big bowls of hriny clam chowder ("Manhattan" but with only hint of tomato), superb fried clams and tartly sweet home-made strawberry-rhubarb pie are all worth waiting for.

Silver's 1 Main Street, Southampton. (516) 283-9770. From 8 A.M. to 4 P.M. (6 P.M. starting in July). No reservations. $1.25 to $6.95. No alcoholic bever-ages. No gredit cards.

Despite endorsements (printed on the menu) from Tom Ewell, Woody Allen and others, Silver's is not a favorite. Since the old polished wooden counter was replaced with laminated plastic, it is even less so. Sandwiches, salads, omelettes and other dishes are showered with dried parsley, oregano and other berbs dispensed from enormous jars; salads are composed on beds of unwieldy leaves of romaine; most of the food is overseasoned and portions are too large. This is an old cigar and newspaper store cum restaurant and it throbs with activity all day long. Try the cold soups but tell them to hold the berbs.

A caterer from Scarsdale once sent a refrigerated truck to the Candy Kitchen for some of the homemade ice cream. The fruit flavors-fresh strawberry, peach, ba-name—are the best of this rich, somewhat airy confection. In addition to ice cream, hreakfast, sandwiches and some entrees, such as fried chicken, are served in the cheerful, summery soda parlor, which still has an oldreshioned look.

Art: Regards to Piancastelli

By JOHN RUSSELL

O BE director of the Borghese Gallery in Rome would be better than begging in the Giovanni Piancastelli became the first holder of the post, it was paradise. Rome in those days was the place where everyone wanted to be. Not for oothing did Henry James place most of the action of his last novel there: Rome was Rome, a city of unparalleled amenity, and it seemed only yesterday that the best painters and sculp-tors from all over had fought to get there.

Piancastelli was an example of a species now al-most extinct: the painter-curator. Like Sir Charles Eastlake of the National Gallery in London, he was a bet-ter than average painter. He was also a collector. In this latter capacity he was om-nivorous, polyvalent, insatia-hle. There was just aboot oothing that he wouldn't huy. The numbers speak for them-selves. The Cooper-Hewitt Museum alone owns 12,457 drawings from Piancastelli's collection, and at one time Janos Scholz owned about a thousand sheets from the same source. Other holdings, reputedly hardly less vast, remained in Italy.

So it is a matter of some curiosity that the Shepherd Gallery, 21 East 84th Street, should have on view (through June 30) 283 drawings that at one time belonged to Piancastelli and were bound up by him in an album. This al-bum has been taken apart, the drawings have been framed one by one, and the gallery has produced one of its more voluminous catalogues, with enough facts, dates, anecdotes and sage at-tributions to sink any one of the tall ships that are now approaching our shores. What does it all amount to? Did Piancastelli have an original eye, or did he just huy everything in sight? Quite certainly ha was not the captive of any one style or period. There are artists at the Sbepherd Gallery who were born about 1750, and there is also a drawing, "St. George and the Dragon," by G. B. Bison, who has claims to be called the last consequential Venetian painter. quential venetian painter. Bisoo kept on going when G. B. Tiepolo and his family left off, just as Luigi Calamatta, at one time a pupil of Ingres, kept going with portrait-drawings when Ingres had already left Rome and gone back to Paris.

Gustavo Mancinelli's "Portrait of a Young Man"

Piancastelli monitored score after score of artists of this kind, thereby ensuring for them a limited immortality; and a great many of them, including Gustavo mancinelli, are at the Shepherd Gallery, either framed on the wall or heaped here and there. It is a school seeing to go through them and sort out the good from the oot so good.

The good can make itself felt at any moment in time, though the odds lengtheo as we approach our own day. (One artist in the show, Giuseppe Signorini, died as rec-ently as 1932.) Italian art of even the most debased period is like Italian food and wine in that it sets up a climate of acceptance. The intection is so-good, the will to communicate so all-pervading, that we hate to say how, awful it sometimes is. There is also the key fact that Rome in the 19th century swarmed with foreigners. There were Englishmen, Scotsmen, Frenchmen, Ger-mans, Austrians, Americans, Poles, Russians, Danes, Each ooe of them strained the Italian heritage through a sieve peculiar to himself. Rome from the point of view of the ethic risotto was at that time as good as Paris ever was and as good as New York is today. What scholars

call "Italian ottocento paintwas owed to as strange

a group as ever was proces sed oo Ellis Island. All this gives a heterogeneous savor, a mix of strange herbs and spices, to the dish that is set before us at the Shepherd Gallery. There is oo undiscovered great art in the show, but he would be a duli visitor indeed who did not find a tidbit to his taste somewhere along the line, from the neo-classical drawings of the early 19th cent-ury to the head of Seneca that was drawn by the future Futurist Giacomo Balla and the matron far gone in debauch who was caught by

Antonio Casanova in the act of scanning the vocal score of "La Traviata."

Emil Nolde (Sabarsky Gallery, 987 Madison Avenue at 77th Street): Maybe Emil Nolde should have gone to Rome. Or just about anywhere that would have lightened his touch timed his sense of color and persuaded him not to take himself quite so seriously. That he had the temperament of a painter is beyond question. A painting by him stands out in any company. But it stands out for the wrong reasons: We come to dread those gap-toothed human figures, those flowers raucous beyond the nightmares of the seedsman, those landscapes coarsely set down in terms of color for which we cannot call nature to book.

He never stopped working, moreover, and all too much of it is getting out. The Sabarsky show does not refute this opinion, but in the painting of two birds, just inside the door, Noide brings off the kind of offbeat image that released his more rewarding side. Through July.

Daniel Lifshitz (Touchstone Gallery, 118 East 64th Street): Daniel Lifshitz in his pastels is very strong on meteorology. Set him to capture what tha French call "the hour between dog and wolf"—the moment before nightfall, that is to say—and he will do it in terms of contrasting vel-vets and suedes. Just before the light goes he will set down precisely those smudges of color that have a valedictory poignance.

He is not quite so good indoors, where human beings and fixmiture make their claims upon him and the light may come from more than one source; but in the condensation of an unpopu-lated nature he really does very well. Through June 30.

New Talent in Printmaking 1976 (A.A.A. Gallery 663 Fifth Avenue at 53d Street): Two of the words that blow up in our faces as often as not are "new" and "talent." When they are combined, watch out!

If my own favorite among the seven newcomers at the A.A. is James Hendershot from St. John's University in Minnesota, it is doubtless because I dote on trains, like prints to convey information and favor the kind of accelerated archeology that fixes on modes of life that have only lately become extinct. Mr. Hendershot's lithographs of life as it was lived on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway just one generation ago fulfill all these oeeds to admira-tion. Through July 2.

New York, New Yorki (Nicholls Gallery, 1014 Madison Avenue at 78th Street): If it seems to you funny that two swans should cast a cold eye at "Swan Lake" from the hack of the dress circle, and if you can't wait to see the image that Peter Arno fitted to the words "Are you the gentleman who's fit to be tied?," don't miss the summer that the Mishelle Collect. show at the Nicholls Gallery. James Stevenson did the swans, and among others Charles Addams and Whitney Darrow Jr. are in top form. Through July 16.

vette," in courtyard, who needs another ocuvre? That was the feel-505 LaGuardia Place, a mid-dle-income cooperative over-looking the Picasso work in University Plaza, facing Bleecker Street. But other tenants felt differently, including Sasson Soffer, himself a sculptor who thinks large. In November, 1973, with the backing of some of the cooperative's board members, Mr. Soffer brought his own work to "505," a 24-foot high double spiral of steel called "West Gate."

Temporarily placed on the side of the building near the Picasso, "West Gate" immediately stirred op controversy. Some shareholders referred to it unkindly as a "pretzel," others remarked on the clummy concrete "feet" on the clumsy concrete "feet" attached to the work as that the sculpture, weighing 6,000 pounds with its conwhen properly installed with-out them, would crash through the roof of the un-derground garage, on whose grass-covered top Mr. Soffer planned his permanent installation (facing Houston Street, in the back of the building).

A group of tenants who liked "West Gate," however, evolved a plan to place it and other works along a grassy strip on LaGuardia Place, thus forming an outdoor sculpture garden. But for lack of funding, the project came to naught, In March, 1974, tenants attending a board meeting vetoed the sculpture by close vote, and Mr. Soffer was asked to Undaunted, the Iraqi-born sculptor dallied, on the ground that his project had not been fully explained to the tenants before the vote was taken. Meanwhile, according to Mr. Soffer, a foundation offered to pay installation costs. Last week, the project again came up for a vote. There was advance lobbying by letter, both on the part of Mr. Soffer and the opposition. (One octogenarian critic, with whom the sculptor ac-tually came to blows, referred to the works as a "coiled-colic costruction")

maintained that a structural engineer would guarantee the safety of placing the sculp-

Sasson Soffer's "West Gate": Referred to by some as a "pretzel"

ture atop the garage; that the cement bases would be removed and that its stainless steel material would incur no maintenance costs. Some tenants argued that, properly placed, the sculpture would be an esthetic asset, and at a well-attended turnout June 10, the vote was 70 to 51 in favor of retaining Gate."

And a number of tenants continue to harbor negative feelings about the work. "I still think it lonks like a stu-dent's squiggle," said one. But Mr. Soffer, who spent $11,500 to make the sculpture and is not one to hide his light under a bushel, sees the vote as "a victory, not only for the people of the cooperative, but of the whole city."

Speculation is rife here about the gilded future of the J. Paul Getty Museum in Mal-ibu, Calif., whose chief bene-factor, the billionaire oilman, died last week, leaving it a large but unspecified bundle of money. The museum, opened in January 1974, is a $20 million re-creation of villa at Herculaneum destroyed by the eruption of Vestivitis in A.D. 79.

The will, filed for probate last week in Los Angeles, provides that the residue of Mr. Getty's estate, after bequests to family and friends, go to the museum. But how much that residue amounts to is unknown, since it depends on satisfaction of the pends on sausaction or the other bequests and legal fees. Nevertheless, Stephen Garrett, deputy director of the museum, says that the sum will be "absolutely stagger-in-". ing."

The museum, which col-lects French furniture, Greek and Roman antiquities and Western European paintings, could thus come into one of the biggest endowments in American museum history, bigger even than that of the Kimbell Art Museum in Fort. Worth, whose benefactor, the late Kay Kimbell, also dab-bled in oil and is said to have left the museum's adminis-tering foundation $50 million to $100 million.

But, according to Mr. Garrett, it may "take up to three years" to learn exactly what the Getty Museum will receive. With an administrator's detroined to the second second manufacturers. tor's detachment, he's taking it all rather coolly, however. "There's no urgency as far as we're concerned," he says. Two new local feminist art magazines will soon be amoog us: Heresies, an "ideaquarterly that, beginning in November will examine art and politics "from a feminist perspective," and Womanart, a bimonthly journal of reviews and reportage, out this last week. They join the Feminist Art Journal, begun a few years ago and edit-ed by Cindy Nemser, which presents a mix of reportage, opinion and scholarly articles and has virtually had the field to itself.

After more than a decade with the Marlborough Gal-lery, the painter Lee Krasner has decided to move on. The artist, who's had several museum shows in the last few years, has gone east on 57th Street to the Pace Gallery. swelling to three the number of women artists in Pace's top-flight stable (the others are Louise Nevelson and Agnes Martin).

The move has nothing to do with Mariborough's well-publicized troubles with the Mark Rothko estate, Miss Krasner says, "All good things come to an end it's the longest time I've been with any dealer, and it's time for a change."

She also confirmed that sales of the work of her late imsband, the Abstract Expressionist painter Jacksoo Pollock, handled by Mariborough since 1961, were stopped in 1973. A plan is in the works for dealing with the paintings in another way than as the "estate of Jackson Pollock." Miss Krasner said.

Publisher Sees Smooth Selling on High Seas Saga

By THOMAS LASK

ACK IN 1974 plans were being made in Hawaii by the Polyoesian Voyaging Society for a trip from Hawali to Tahiti under the same conditions encountered by the early Polynesians. The plan was to construct a doublebulled canoe that was to be used without recourse to charts and instruments.

Sensing another possible "Kon-Tiki," that best-selling account of a similar voyage across the Pacific Dodd, Mead signed up the rights, the book to be written by Ben R. Finney, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Hawaii, and Herbert Kawainui Kane, an architectural designer. The men are president and vice president of the society.

It took two years to build the cance, train the crew and make some test runs around the islands. Patience has paid off, bowever, for Dodd, Mead. After a 34-day 2,400-mile voyage, the 60-foot craft landed at Papeete nn June 5, and the 15-man crew was welcomed by 10,000 persons. The book is expected to be

The book contract was not quite a matter of luck for Dodd Mead It was brought into the house by Edward Dodd, chairman of the board, who is himself a Polynesian culture expert. His book "Polynesia's Sacred Isle," about the island of Raietea, situated about 100 miles from Tahiti, was released last month. That island, by the way, is known to botanists as the locus for a rare flower, the tiare apetahi, unusual in that it refuses to be transplanted anywhere else in the

There will be a sequel to "Winning Hearts and Miods," the collection of war poems written by Vietnam veterans that was published in 1972 to considerable notice. More than 40,000 copies of the poetry anthology were sold.

The new book, "Demilitarized Zones," will include poems, prose, art and photographs and deal with the experience of veterans after their return from Indochina. The publisher will be Easter River Anthology, a coopera-Jan Barry and Bill Ehrhart (114 North Sixth Street, Perkasie, Pa. 18944). Publication day is July 4.

Edmund Wilson thundered against it and Lewis Mumford let loose a few blasts. scribed as the adventure of Now after 10 years and the expenditure of $3 million in National Endowment of the Humanities money, The Ceoter for Editions of American Authors will close this August at the Uoiversity of South Carolina.

The center, set up to provide deficitive editions of American literary works, has 135 such books finished or projected. Well-known writers—Twain, Melville, Hawthorne. Emerson—as well as lesser figures — Charles Brockton Brown, William Gilmore Sims—are included in the series. Some 200 scholars worked under the direction of Matthew J. Bruccoli, director of the ceoter, in completing the project.

'For the first time we have completely eccurate editinns of American classics. These editions preserve what the authors originally intended for their work," said Mr. Bruccoli, who is a professor of English at the University of South Carolina. One of the practices of the center was to get an outside authority to review the work of the editor. When the outsider dld not approve—and there were some cases, Mr. Bruccoli said — the editor either revised his work or went without the center's seal of approval, the benchmark of the finished work.

Although this phase of these endeavnrs will end in August, a revised version will continue at the University of Indiana under the name of the Center for Scholarly Editions and the direction of Prof. Don Cook. The oew element in the project is that the center will oot confine itself to American authors but will include those of Eogland as well.

One of the publishing oddi-ties of the fall season will be Persea's "The Fragmented Life of Don Jacobo Lerner" by Isaac Goldenberg, an expatriate Peruvian now-living in New York. The oovel was written in Spanish, aod with the help of The Center for Inter - American was translated by Robert Picciotto, Persea got wind of the translated versioo, read it and acquired the manuscript.

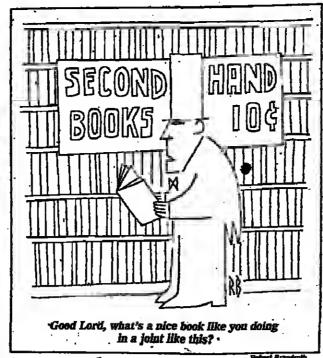

So far there is oo word about Spanish publication. Thus, Mr. Goldenberg is in the rather odd position of having his book accepted by a foreign publisher while the original version languishes for acceptance.

The novel bas been dea Jewish peddler in the jungles of Peru. "A sad, but warm and compassionate work," his publisher, Michael Braziller, says.

Speaking of Spanish-language novelists, the bottest oame in publishing oext season may turn out to be Jose Donoso, the Chilean novelist now living in Spain and best "The Obscene Bird of Night." David R. Godine will issue a still untitled collection of sbort stories, Knopf will pub-lish "Three Novellas," and Columbia University Press will issue Donoso's "A Personal History of the Boom."

In addition, Godine will re-lease the paperback of "Ob-scene Bird." All of these will be in translation from the Spanish. But an interesting footnote to this body of work is that Doooso wrote his first two stories in English.

Few Experts Willing to Shift Bridge: From Inferior Signaling System

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

Most experts are aware that standard signaling methods are slightly inferior, but very few of them are willing to make the effort to change deeply ingrained habits. One example is the normal length signal, in which a defender plays high-low with two cards or four. The high card in a doubleton holding is often useful and cannot be spared, so the Scandinavians are theoretically right in playing high with three cards in the opponents suit.

same is true with the normal high-low signal to en-courage or discourage part-ner. Not uncommonly a player wishes to encourage, but can-not spare a high card to give that message, so the upside-down signal—high to dis-courage, low to eocourage— is theoretically right.

A case in point is the diagramed deal from the Grand National zonal playoffs in Boston last weekend. At the secood trick East gave a nor-mal encouraging signal with a ninespot, only to discover in the end game that he would have done better to preserve that card.

Straining for points in a match in which his team was trailing, South opened four

the matter bluntly almost a half-century ago when he wrote in "Axel's Castle," apropos of Eliot's belief that civilization depends upon the church: "Yet you can hardly have an effective church without a cult of Christ as the son of God; and you cannot have such a cult without more willingness to accept the supernatural than most of us today are able to muster." Perhaps Wilson was presuming when he included "most of us" in his antiraligious dictum, but it is questionable whether American civilization, or at least that part of it concerned with serious poetry, has moved much closer to a Christian God in the meantime.

Morever, a dominant theme in Spender's study is the importance to Eliot of a study is the importance to Eliot of a specifically European past—a past whose maccessibility to Eliot served to vitaliza the ironies of such early poems as "Profrock," "Portrait of a Lady," "Gerontion," and "The Waste Land"; and a past with which the poet "intersected outside of time" in "Ash wednesday" and "Four Chariteti". This concern of Eliotic with Quartets." This concern of Eliot's with the past is nothing new, of course, we have come across it in countles commentaries and freshman English courses. But what Spender illuminates for us is the link of this past to Eliot's criticism and politics, and hence to his academicism (his implicit belief that an artist had to digest all of European culture before he could begin to create anything "new"), his elitism, his anti-liberalism, and possibly even his occasional flashes of anti-Semitism. All of which prompts the simple question: If Eliot had to escape American culture to locate this pest, does American culture need Eliot to locate its auture? (I gather from Frank Kermode's statement, that this is what a "Modern Master" is supposed to be helping us do.)

to denigrate Eliot's considerable contribution to modern English poetry, nor for that matter to the lucidity with which Spender has explained it. Still, reading "T. S. Eliot" one cannot help recalling William Carlos Williams's lifelong hostility to Eliot's art, or the attention focused by the critic Hugh Kenner on those American writers who turned their backs on the European tradition and sought to create what Kenner called "A Homemade World," or the enduring but enervating influence of the New Criticism (which owed so much to Eliot's precepts) or even Ralph Waldo Emerson's long ago call for America to forget Europe and create its own cultural tradition. In short, Stephen Spender has done a worthy job of illuminating T. S. Eliot, but in the process he has shown us how very dated a "modern master" Eliot

America's best-selling author on America's favorite pastime

When James Michener was a youth, basketball probably helped save him from ecoming a juvenile delinquent. Later in life his vigorous physical activity kept him fit after a serious heart attack. Out of his gratitude and lifetime enthusiasm for sports comes this big, spectacular, deeply personal book about the ways we are using and misusing sports in this countryfrom Little League to the Olympics to the pros; from the salaries of star athletes to the discrimination against women in phys-ed budgets to the scandalous recruiting programs of colleges and universities.

Sports are our favorite pastime -but they are in trouble. Violence, politics, money, media coverage, the stress placed on winning-all are robbing us of what Michener feels sports are all about: "the enlarging of the human adventure."

Here is Michener at his best lively, anecdotal, provocative - in a book for his own vast readership as well as for everyone who enjoys sports in America. "It is difficult to see how a book on sports could be more comprehensive...From the abuses of Pop Warner Football to the harm done young blacks by myths of upward mobility, from the success of lives enriched by athletie careers to the joys of maintaining good health through exercise, Michener is unfailingly informed and informative. ... From England comes a new syndicated series that pur-ports to give "visual meaning" to the sounds of today." Called "Supersonic," the production from London Weekend Television (source of "Upstairs, Downstairs," to which this eotry bears no resemblance whatever) issues a stream of rock music from a succession of groups and with introductions or chitchat. It is music, music, music and fast, fast, fast, performed on a glittering glasslike stage before a highly aroused studio audience.

As for the "visual meaning," it would seem to be the neurotic inability of the camerss to fix oo an image for more than a second. Every trick of electronic special effects comes into play, swirling rimpositions. distortions and kaleidoscopic

The program airs oo WPIX at 5:30 P.M., and this week's lineup features the Bay City Rollers, Cliff Richard, Pilot, Chris Farlowe and Mud.

At 11 P.M., WNEW-TV presents the second in the series of 90-minute specials from the stage of the Apollo Theater in Harlem, the historic temple of music for black America. In marked contrast "Supersonic," "Apollo" does not hedge its bet with production legerdemain but allows itself to be carried strictly on the merits of the performing acts. And the acts do carry it exceedingly well.

The prospective series aims to shed light for the viewer on the personal lives of celebrities. Hugh Herner, for instance, will show off his $S.S million Playboy Mansion West in Los Angeles. Telly Savalas, star of "Kojak," who was filmed while on holiday in London, talks about gambling and women. Lindsay Wagner, who plays televisioo's "Bionic Woman," discusses in her segment on the French Riviera has not been disclosed. But the general idea seems fairly clear. and indeed, it is probably the only quarter in New York in which one might still today, at least for a flecting moment, actually sustain the illusion of being in London. It is an illusion that passes quickly, of course—a careful look at the enchitecture around the park reveals much closer ties to the brinding heritage of New York than that of London, however.

than that of London, however much the square itself may be English in inspira-tion. But that ultimately is why Gramercy Park is so important to New York—it is not merely a charming but superficial whiff of London, but a place that, with its brownstones and loose eclec ticism, could only be in America

The park neighbothood has never really been defined. The park itself sits at the foot of Lexington Avenue at stractly private, patch of 21st Street, and Gramercy green surrounded by an iron. Park addresses are permitted fence. Gramercy Bark is irequently compared to London, and indeed, it is probably the only quarter is New York in Stracts. Streets, which connect the park to Park Avenue South and Third Avenue.

But most people offer wid-tr boundaries for "Gramen-cy Park." Real estate agents, for example, tend to use the loosest definition; eager to sell the park's prestige, they will advertise anything between Greenwich Village and Marray Hill as being in the "Gram. Pk. Vic."

But the best way to get a feeling of the park and some of its surrounding context is to strike a compromise definition, taking the park itself and the blocks from about 18th Street to 22d from Broadway to Third Avenue.

Exploring

Gramercy Park is a neigh-borhood made for wandering. It is not a shopping area, and there is virtually no enter-tainment, allifough there are a few decent restaurants (see below). There is only one tourist attraction of the tra-ditional sort—the Theodore Roosevelt birtiplace, a pleas-ant, restored brownstone at ant, restored brownstone at 28 East 20th Street, maintained by the National Park Service. It is open from 9 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. every day. The fee is 50 cents for persons aga 18 to 52 cents for persons agas 18 to 52 sons age 16 to 62; otherwise

It is free. Other places are richer in the sort of frozen history in the sort of frozen history the Roosevelt House provides; the joy of exploring Gramercy Park is in seeing an old part of New York that is both architecturally intact and full of new kinds of life. One can begin a walk anywhere, and from any direction the draina of coming upon the lush greenery of the tiny park is: considerable. Start, then, with a walk Start, then, with a walk around the park itself. • . .

The west side contains a superb row of houses from the 1840's, two of which-Nos. 3 and 4—are attributed to A. J. Davis, one of New York's leading architects of the period. Note the elaborate cartiron rate cast-iron porch and the "Mayor's Lamps" in front of No. 4; once the home of Mayor James Harper. In the days before Gracie Mansion the langers traditionally denoted a Mayor's becidance. noted a Mayor's residence.

The south side contains two formidable yet gracious brownstones, the National Arts Club at No. 15, remodeled in 1874 by Calvert Vaux as Samuel J. Tilden's residence, and the Players Club at No. 16, remodeled for Edwin Booth (whose statue is within the park) in 1888 by Stanford White, himself a Gramercy Park resident. The Arts Club occasionally has exhibits to which the public is admitted; phone GR 5-3424

Across Irving Place, still on the south side, is No. 19—the Second Empire mansion dating from 1845 in which much of "Time and Again" is set. No. 19 was once the home of the social leader Mrs. Stryvesant Fish, and for more than 40 years has been occupied by the public rela-tions counsel Benjamin Son-nenberg, it is silent and digGrainercy Park is just enough off the beaten track to have allowed it to preserve its serenity, but close enough to make it reasonably accessible from anywhere in Manhattan. tween Irving Place and Third Avenue. Here is one of the best indications around of the principle that, in a city, the whole is more than the sum of the parts, for while there is not a single remark-able building on this street, the houses come together to create a splendid totality.

View through the ornate grillwork of the Players Club toward the impeccably maintained—and strictly private—park.

History

Gramercy Park should be a reminder to all those who say real estate developers are never up to any good. The park area was bought in 1831 by Samuel B. Ruggles, a developer, who laid out Irving Place, Lexington Avenue (he selected both names, in fact) and building sites around a central square. The park has never been public; it was always intended to enhance the value of the houses around it, which it has been doing successfully for 145 years. Residents pay an an-nual maintenance fee to the Gramercy Park Association, which provides them with keys to the iron gate.

Eating

This is not a great restaurant neighborhood, but it is a good one, and there are several better places right near the park. Pete's Tavern, an old standby on Irving Place at 18th Street, combines the feeling of a neighborhood saloon with inexpensive Italian food.

Sal Anthony's, on Irving Place at 16th Street, has somewhat more ambitious Italian food.

Paul and Jimmy's Place, at 54 Irving Place, provides perhaps the best Italian food in the neighborhood. Tuesday's, on Third Avenue at 17th Street, is the closest the neighborhood comes to an uptown singles bar (al-though Third Avenue here looks surprisingly similar to-Third Avenue in the seventies uptown, thanks to the invasion of white-brick highrises a few years back). Z, at 117 East 15th Street offers good and not-too-expensive Greek food.

Sparks Steak House, at 123 East 18th Street, serves excellent steak at bargain rates, but for the price of putting up with much noise and crowding.

a window ledge will do your specimen no good. An easy, way to arrange for sun above and shade below is to: stand pots just below the window silt and train the plants upward.

Another way to keep the roots cool is to use an extra thick planter. I fined the type basket of an old L. C. Smith typewriter I found on the street with heavy-duty plastic, filled it one-for drainage and then put in potting soil. The sun shines on the type

Probably the most readily available of the branching ivies is "Manda's Crested." Although it was developed in New Jersey it takes to the offices of the Empire State like English Ivy to a manor house. FATHER'S DAY

Today is Father's Day and there will be a march and celebration at noon today at Washington Square Arch. Dads and kids invited to join in Spon-sored by Men's Acting Network to "demonstrate the new father's desire for greater involvement with children," it will be a zome-play, some-work affair. There will be a "listening lab" at which fathers and children can listen to feelings expressed about each other. There will also be signs and reading matter on behalf of the men's view of things in the family. If the kids are not involved in that, they can get balloons and big ties, the perennial Father's Day gift.

NORTH SHORE WALK

If Dad doesn't want to get briefed on his relations with the kids in Washington Square, he can take bimself to the North Shore Science Museum, an attractive science activity center in Leeds Pond Preserve, 1526 North Plan-dome Road. Plandome Manor, near Manhasset, L.L (516) 627-9400. They're staging a Father's Day beach walk along Manhasset Bay at low tide, with a field guide tutoring in nature study. It's a one-hour seaside stroll. Inside the museum there's a "Hands On" exhibit with things for the youngsters to touch while keeping their hands off dad. The walk is at 1 P.M. and it costs $2 for a family or 50 cents a person. The museum is open from noon to 4 P.M. today, and admission is 75 cents; 50 cents for under-12's and over-65's.

FINNISH TRIBUTE

There are thousands of New Yorkers of Finnish ancestry and many of them will be converging on the Statue of Liberty today for a "heritage festival" from 11 A.M. to 4 P.M. Finnish New Yorkers, who founded the first cooperatives in the city and used to be concentrated in areas in Brooklyn, the Bronx and East 125th Street, are now scattered throughout the metropolitan area, but they maintain organizations such as the one that is sponsoring to-day's Bicentennial observance. At the statue, there will be lots of live per-formance including a 71-voice male choir from Helsinki, a 15-woman gymnastic group from Lahti, and numerous choral, musical and dance groups from our area. Also arts and crafts exhibit and a formal program at 1 P.M. Admission free, but the boat fare is $1.25. Information: 593-4788, 255-2180.

PARKWAY CELEBRATION

The Bronx River Parkway will be closed to cars between Scarsdale and Valhalla today from 10 A.M. and 5 P.M., but go there anyway. The three or so miles of parkway will be opened as-a leisure and fun trail for pede strians, baby carriages and bicycles. From Harney Road on the south to Kensico Dam Piaza on the north there will be a potpourri of Bicentennial Parkway events. At the Kensico Plaza there will be music, balloons and two professional parachute jumpers who will arrive from above with an American flag at 1 P.M.; also a bicycle rodeo, square dancing, races and old fire engines. At the County Center in White Plains, there will be pottery and painting displays, a bicycle-decorating contest, a banjo band and in the center itself, big band stuff at I P.M. At Har-ney Road, the Wildcliff Natural Science Center's children's zoo exhibit and a steel drum band. Along the whole route: magicians, clowns, musicians. All free except for bike rentals, rides. Information: (914) 682-

WEST SIDE GALA

The wide stretch of West 77th Street between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue will be the setting, from 11 A.M. until sunset today, for the first West Side Jewish Street Festival. The West Side, an area rich in Jewish associations (it was "Marjorie Morningstar" country), will supply much of the personnel for the festival, which is sponsored by the American Jewish Congress's Youth Commission and the West Side Jewish Community Council. All kinds of Jewish edibles, including East European, Sephardic, Israeli and, yes, they insist it's so, "kosher organic." Singers, dance groups, guest artists and displays by Jewish organizations. Booths stocked with crafts, Jewish books and records and Israeli gift items. Information: 586-2900;

No tricks. No word games. You can actually get our least expensive Audi than the least expensive Volvo, BMW, Saab or Peugeot.

And not only will you be spending less, but you'll be getting more. More miles per gallon than any of them. 37 on the highway and 24 in the city for our standard shift model, based on the latest EPA estimates. (Mileage can vary, of course, depending on the car's condition, optional equipment, as well as the way you drive.)

You'll also be getting advanced engineering features, like fuel injection, front-wheel drive, rack-and-pinion steering, dual diagonal brakes and torsion crank rear axle.

Inventory Buildup Is Stirring Fears

By ISADORE BARMASH

Despite economic recovery, erratic sales patterns in various husinesses are contrib-uting to mounting inventories throughout a broad range of American industry, giv-ing rise to fears of clogged pipelines and adverse effects on the national economy.

These are some of the major trends: Steel mill inventories are up 7 percent over a year ago. While utilization of steel capacity has risen from 80 to 90 percent in the last year, shipments were up only 1.9 percent in the first four months of 1976.

Domestic new-car sales, while still one of the economy's brightest lights, sinwed somewhat in their May increase, rising 31 percent from last year's depressed levels after a 52 percent gain in April. This caused May's annual selling rate to drop to 8.7 million units from 9, million in April and 9.3 in March, Although some question remains about the effect on inventory levels, a 58 percent sales pickup in the first 10 days of June prompts se-curity analysts such as David Eisenberg of Sanford C. Bernstein & Company to project no material change in inventory levels,

¶In furniture, industry inventories rose to $1.23 billion in April, similar to the level of 1974's first quarter, when sales were at a peak for the 1970's. Observers such as Michael Sherman, director of economic research for the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, Washington, report that new factory orders are currently investing out. leveling out.

Quimber inventories are also begin ning to rise, after reaching a peak in the third quarter last year and dropping until the first quarter of 1976.

Retail stores are beginning to feel the pinch. In New York, major stores began cutting prices on women's and men's clothing early this month, at least three weeks before their normal July, 4 clearances. In Chicago, Goldblatt Brothers, finding sales falling below plan since Easter, sold men's suits at 30 percent off last week. And in Los Angeles, Carter Hawley Hale Stores Inc., the West Coast's largest department store chain, prepared for a July meeting of all division principals to further cau-tion them on fall-winter commitments.

However, in the retail appliance business, a sales recovery finds orders up 10 to 12 percent and inventories down about 7 to 8-percent, compared with levels a year ago, Jules Steinberg, executive vice president of the National Radio and Appliance Dealers Association, reported.

"After a big sales drop last year, the sales inventory ratio in our business is very good," he said. "It simply means that there will be fewer bankrupicies

City's Glitter for U.S. Businesses Dims

By PETER T. KILBORN

BRUSSELS—This was a city of promises a decade ago, the cradle of the Common Market and the burgeoning capital of Europe. Brussels was a city of fear as well.

Giant American companies were moving in, setting up the barracks and command posts from which, it was thought, they would overwhelm sleepy European indus-tries as the European Economic Community lowered its member countries trade

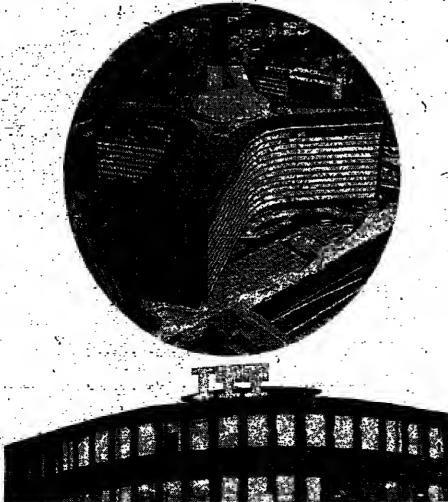

Brussels has quieted down since then, and things have worked out differently than expected. It is somewhat easier to do business over national boundaries now, but political bickering in Europe has compro-mised the loftier goals of the 1960's. The American companies, for their part, are even appreciated here now, being seen as no more of a threat than the European multinational companies that have grown

Brussels residents, in fact, are worried because of the few American companies that have left. Newspapers are so awash with rumors of mass departures that the Brussels office of the American Chamber of Commerce is sending its members questionnaires to get to the facts. .

The tough economic climate of the 1970's has toned down the hoom town of the 1960's. There is hardly a street here without a few boarded up shops. And, of the half-dozen American-style hotels that npened here in the 60's to accommodate the influx of businessmen and bureaucrats, two have had to close.

The biggest of the economic shifts that have eliminated Europe as the new frontier it nace was for American industry is the change in currency values. The dollar has fallen during the last decade to the point

Commercial Units in State Intensify Their Lobbying to Abolish Regulation Q

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., June -The commercial banking industry in New York State has undertaken an intensive lobbying effort to get Congress to abolish the interest rate differ-ential that enables savings in-

Northeast who recently agreed to ask Congressional leaders to eliminate the differential on a regional basis.

If the Federally mandated differential, known as Regulation Q, is not wiped off the books, a massive shift of deposits from commercial banks to thrift institutions will occur across the state, and hundreds of commercial bank branches will be forced to close, according to leading bankers inter-

The rate differential, which The rate differential, which enables savings institutions to pay a quarter point higher interest rate on time deposits, has been the chief topic of discussions of the chief topic of the chi sion at the annual convention of the New York State Bankers Association here at the Lake Placid Club.

Abolition Is Urged The group, consisting entirely of commercial bankers, issued a formal statement today call-ing for the abolition of Regu-lation Q. The association considers the situation urgent because of the recent legislation of checking-account powers for savings institutions by the State Legislature.

Because savings banks now offer checking accounts and also can pay higher interest rates to savers, there is less reason for consumers to maintain accounts in commercial banks, according to partici-pants in the meeting here, and deposits are already being shifted tothe thrift institutions. The association recently conducted a statewide economic survey that concluded that 611 commercial hank offices would be closed as a result of the law enabling savings banks to offer checking accounts.

Under the older sinking fund, $31 million of the bonds must be retired by July 1, 1977, little more than a year from now. The bonds probably will be purchased by the trustee in the open market. At current discounts from par—ahout 30 percent—the $31 million could be retired through an expendi-ture of about $22 million.

Sinking funds tend to give market support to hond issues. It would be some time before such support would materialize for the new 15year 8's. That issue's sinking fund will not begin to retire bonds until July 1982-six years hence.

The money for the sinking fund is payable to the city out of per-capita state aid revenues and through a second lien on certain state sales taxes and the stock transfer tax.

It is already clear that the new 8's will trade for less than the old 8's, and it seems unlikely that the market for the new ones will be substantially better than the market for the notes not yet been issued, a "gray market" has developed in the bonds on a when-issued basis. The price for the bonds in that market is said to be 5814 bid, 5914 asked. The market for the notes is 58 bid and 61 1/2 asked, with very little trading reported in either tha notes or the bonds. On the other hand, the 10year 8's are quited at 67

bid, 70 asked. The markets for these se-curities have been affected by comments from Washington and elsewhere relating to the city's continuing proh-lems. For example, William E. Simon, Secretary of the Treasury, recently expressed concern over the city's slow progress toward financial viability.

An even more serious market drag resulted from a decision hy Moody's Investors Service to downgrade earlier M.A.C. issues from A to B rating—three levels lower. Tha 10-and the 15-year exchange 8's are unrated.

One Wall Street observer says that many noteholders are hitter that the new exchange 8's are less desirable than the old. However, he believes exchange still offers

Thanks to the publicity given it by the Soviet delegate, Mr. Brown's speech became one of the most popular conference documents. He was kept busy distributing copies, many of them to delegates from developing nations.

Sol C. Chaikin, president. of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, had a somewhat less frustrating experience with the Communist bloc. He was sitting with Bert Seidman, director of the A.F.L.-C.LO. social security department, in a draft-ing committee dealing with international manpower migration and adjustment assistance for workers dis-placed by foreign imports. excessive levels.

While no one sees a crisis situation as yet, the inventory-sales ratio in recent months with the exception of April—are raising fears of an inventory glut like that in 1974 and early 1975 that brought widespread depreciation of sluggish goods, heavy price competition and reduced applies for many duced profits for many.

The most obvious caution signal was the May slowdown signal was the May slowdown in retail sales, dipping 1.2 percent from a year-ago level after a slippage of one-tenth of I percent in April. Actually, the May decline indicated a 5 percent drop and perhaps more if the inflation factor is considered.

Early reports of June sales Early reports of June sales

thus far show a pickup from the May level, but the figures are still below the strong June of 1975. According to Edgar R. Fiedler, vice president for eco-nomic research for the Con-ference Board, a nonprofit business research organiza-

"Inventory accumulation for the total economy in the first quarter grew at a rate of $15.5 billion against a liquidation rate the year before of $24.8 billion. Yet, in the 1974 first quarter, the accumulation rate was only $14.9 hillion adn the year before that it was $12.4 billion.

"Does that indicate an ex-cessive rise in inventory evels? Perhaps — but not when you compare the recent inventory rise with the $27.7 billion accumulation in the fourth quarter of 1973 when stocks really got out of hand."

More important than in-ventories on hand in the na-tion's one million or more retail stores, perhaps, is the level of capacity use in the basic industries producing the raw materials that ultimately wind up in finished goods. The steel, nonferrous metals, paper and chemical industries are the most significant ones in that respect, since, according to econom-ists such as Mr. Fiedler, their current production is closest to capacity.

When capacity remains un-derutilized and there is still sufficient slack in the econore! to lag behind my, no one worries unduly about the state of inventories. But when the slack is capital im- removed from the economy by high and worrisome. On operations in those four in-dustries and others," Mr. Fiedler said, "the inventory

82 percent of capacity. In 1978 and 1974 when inventories peaked, the level had reached 92 percent. The four key industries— steel, nonferrous metals, paper and chemicals—accounted for the higgest increases in capital spending in 1974 and 1975, expenditures that should be creating new capacity now and in the months about

On that basis, Mr. Fiedler believes, the markets for finished goods have about one year to go before they become congested.
"The matter of when inventory accumulation becomes excessive is a slippery one," Mr. Fiedler said. "Per-haps the real answer lies in the relationship or ratio of inventories to sales. And present ratios show that inventories aren't excessive in relation to sales."

However, according to the Bureau of Economic Analysis of the Commerce Depart-ment, the amount of inventory on hand in American business in this year's first quarter represented the needs of 1.128 quarters. This falls roughly between the levels of the third and fourth quarters of 1973, when American business reached its peak of activity. This means that current on-hand inventories are running as-high as they did when the American economy touched the peak three years ago. From this standpoint, inventories may be dangerousinventories to sales has dropped steadily since the

"There just are not the competitive advantages that a U.S. company had here in the early 60's," said Donald Ham, an executive in the En-Ham, an executive in the European headquarters here of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation. Now, he added, American companies have to compete here on equal terms with Europeans. "Philips and Siemers," he said, "are no pushovers."

Today, as before, Brussels seems an endless construc-tion site despite a glut of of-fice space now. "You take a Belgian doll and wind him up," an American businessman said, "and he'll dig a hole in the street."

In some ways, multinational companies feel at home bere. The Brussels airport, although another cluttered building zone, may be the only one in Europe that greets travelers with a red carpet emblazoned with ad-

Foreigners employed full-time in Bel-gium can exempt 30 percent of their pay from the amount they report for taxes and up they report for taxes and up to 50 percent if they travel widely outside the country.

What concerns multinational companies the most at present is their inability to make the kind of profits in Europe they once could. To begin with, living here is more expensive than in many

Working Woman to Be Published

Working women, who con-

How do you reach them? In the good (or bad) old days when most women were housewives, daytime televi-sion and women's service magazines were wonderfully efficient buys.

"The working woman," said J. Walter Reed, vice president media of Foote, Cone & Belding, "finds her time is more precious, and she doesn't spent & as freely on the media as her sister who stars at home." who stays at home."

That is not to say that working women can't be reached through the pages of magazines with traditional woman readershop. W. R. Simmons Research shows that the audience of Good eeping is 44.6 percent women—8.1 million working women 8.1 million of them. All of the other magazines have even a higher percentage. Cosmopolitan's

This is leading up to the official announcement yesterday of the impending arrival on the publishing scene of Working Woman.

It is the concept of Beatrice

Buckler, who got the idea about two years ago while she was executive editor and a vice president of Family Circle. She's editor and publisher of the new venture. Joining her as president and co-publisher is Elizabeth Foraling Harris, who, briefly, was the first publisher of Ms.

They've raised considerable capital privately through Equitable Capital and Beek-man Securities and, reports Heidi Merrill, the ad director, Working Woman is being en-thusiastically received at ad-vertising agencies.

With Kathy Aaronson, a consultant, she has put on pitches at some 25 agencies in the last two weeks. One pitch recipient was Charles Parlato of F.C.&B., who is indeed enthusiastic.

"A great concept, and I have great hopes for it." he said yesterday. "With soar-ing TV costs, we're looking for new things in print con-stantly. They're going to pick

And they have, according to Miss Aaronson—eight orders on paper and 11 verbal commitments. Not one shots either, but schedules. The magazine won't even be out until November.

The initial print order will be 400,000, but the ad rates will be based on 100,000 going for $1,100 to charter advertisers and a four-color page going for $1,600. A new rate card in January will raise four-color to $4,000.

"We're aiming for 500,000 to 1 million as fast as we can get there," explained Betty Harris, noting that the magazine was willingly pay-ing premium prices to rent mailing lists of people most responsive to direct mail.

There is now a 200,000 mailing in the field that is testing $6, $8 and $10 annual subscription prices. The magazine will have a cover price of $1.25.

A 2.5 million piece mailing is planned for early Septem-ber with an additional 2 million going out in late De-cember. The president for economic reasons, doesn't ex-pect circulation ever to surpass 2 million.

Single-copy sales will not be overlooked, she said, and to help stimulate them, Working Woman has re-tained Grey & Davis, the public relations arm of Grey Advertising to do publicity, public relations and advertising Public appearances by the working women of Work-ing Woman, a little newspa-per advertising and a lot of radio commercials are in the

It was radio advertising's turn in the Clio Awards spot light yesterday, and again the J. Walter Thompson Company, which on Wednesday outshone all the rest at the Effies, made an encore.

The agency picked up five radio Clios. It got three for Water Pik Shower massage advertising and two for a Kodak film spot with Paul

The other big winner was the Marathon Oil Company, which spends most of its advertising budget in radio. It won four Clios for advertis-ing done in-house.

The advertising trend in Philadelphia...

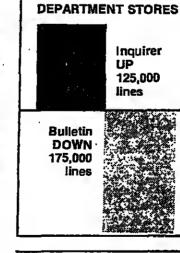

The Inquirer keeps on

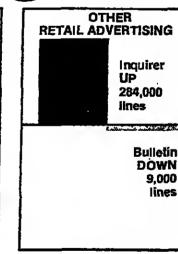

In Philadelphia the trend is with the leader: The Inquirer. Fullrun advertising linage is up for the first quarter of 1976 vs. the first quarter of 1975. The Bulletin is down for the same period.

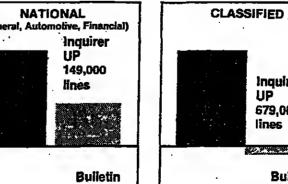

There's a reason.

Advertisers know our readers are better prospects because they respond to The Inquirer's vitality, editorial excellence and tough-minded involvement with the problems of the community.

Advertiser preference is itemized in Media Records' inventory of full-run linage:

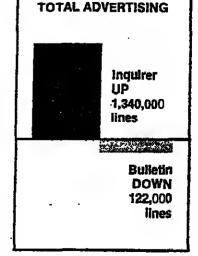

Inquirer 679,000 lines Bulletin DOWN 39,000

And circulation parallels the trend. The daily Inquirer is up 4,000 copies for the first quarter of this year, the daily Bulletin is down 17,000. The Sunday Inquirer circulation is up 9,000; the Sunday Bulletin is down 19,000. In Philadelphia, The Inquirer has the winning trend - and it's all up. Get the full story from your Knight-Ridder representative.

Iran Confirms Gas Discovery

TEHERAN, Iran, June 17 (AP)-The National Iranian Oil Company confirmed today the discovery of one of the world's largest offshore natural gas fields in the Persian Gulf near Bushehr, about 500 miles south of the capital.

It was discovered by a joint Iranian-Shell venture several years ago, but Shell, apparently uncertain of the commercial value, pulled out and the company was taken over by the con-

Little Gain in 1975 Executive Pay

Cash compensation and total compensation for top corporate executives showed little or no increase last year, according to a survey of Fortune 500 companies conducted by Arthur Young & Company. Executive bonuses, profitsharing and deferred compensation awards fell sharply, along with net income and per-share earnings in these companies, the survey showed. Introducing Fact. The low gas low 'tar'

Chances are, you've never heard gas and cigarettes mentioned together before. Just 'tar' and nicotine.

But according to some critics of smoking, gases are part of the controversy, too. Despite what we tobacco people think.

You see, smoke is mostly gas. Different kinds of gas. And these critics say it's just as important to cut down on some of the gases as it is to lower 'tar' and nicotine!

No ordinary cigarette can do it. But Fact can.

Fact is unique, the first cigarette with a revolutionary Purite filter. -And Fact reduces gas concentrations at the same time it reduces 'tar' and nicotine.

Meaning you get low gas and low 'tar.' Together. But that's not all.

Take a minute to read our pack. It tells you how Purite makes this the first low 'tar' smoke with good, rich taste. Taste as good as Marlboro. And that's a Fact.

Fact. The low gas low 'tar.'

Fact is the first cigarette with Purite granules, the selective filtering agent.

Selective.

That means it reduces things that taste bad in smoke.

Without removing the things that taste good.

So, for the first time, you get a taste you can like in a low "tar" cigarette.

And that's a fact.
